SCHMITZ FACES COURT, BUT GETS A DAY'S DELAY

Prosecution Asks Time to Combat Plea for Change of Venue.

EXTORTION IS CHARGE

Ruef, His Former Manager, the Chief Witness Against Him.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Mayor Eugene Schmitz appeared for trial today in Judge Dunne's court on five grand-jury charges of extortion from local keepers of French restaurants. By request of the prosecution the hearing was delayed one day in order that counter-affidavits may be prepared against Schmitz's motion for a change of venue.

The Mayor is accused of having conspired with "Boss" Abe Ruef to hold up the licenses of the French restaurants until the proprietors agreed to pay yearly $1000 each for the five larger restaurants and $300 each for the smaller concerns.

Following the payment of the fee, it is alleged, Mayor Schmitz instructed the Police Commission to rescind its action in withdrawing the licenses, and this was done.

The principal witnesses against Schmitz will be Ruef, who pleaded guilty to a similar charge; former Police Commissioners Thomas F. Reagan and Joseph E. Poheim, and the proprietors of the French restaurants.

Asks New Judge.

Schmitz has moved for substitution of a trial judge on the ground that Judge Frank P. Dunne is disqualified by bias and prejudice. His affidavit charges Rudolph Spreckels and his associates, who are backing the bribery investigation, with having expended nearly $1,000,000 to overthrow the administration in order that they themselves might assume the reins of government and procure for themselves street railway and water franchises which will net them millions of dollars of the public money, and that Judge Dunne is aware of this purpose.

During the trial the Mayor will be a captive in the hands of an elisor. He has announced that "following his acquittal" he will again be a candidate for Mayor.

Seventy-one indictments had been returned against Ruef, and as his confession has implicated Schmitz in every transaction, the same number will be returned against Schmitz.

Schmitz's Affidavit.

Accompanying Mayor Schmitz's motion for substitution of trial judge is an affidavit which reads, in part, as follows:

"That Mr. Spreckels and the associates who are with him, the financial guarantors of the bribery-graft investigation and prosecution, long since exhausted the original fund of $100,000 pledged by Spreckels and have expended nearly $1,000,000 in a municipal purification campaign; that the expenditure of this vast sum of money is by way of an investment from which actual moneyed returns are expected; that Spreckels and his prosecuting associates desire and purpose to overthrow the present municipal administration in order that they themselves may assume the reins of government and secure for themselves street railway and water franchises, which will net them millions of dollars of the public money; that Judge Dunne is aware of this intent and purpose and is therewith in accord; that the conviction of Schmitz is desired as a means of these ends and that it is the wish of Judge Dunne that a biased and prejudiced jury be selected to secure such conviction; that for many and various reasons the same as set forth recently by Abraham Ruef in his application for a substitute for trial Judge, it is impossible for Schmitz to have a fair and impartial trial at Judge Dunne's hands."

DIAMONDS AND MONEY, TOSSED INTO HEAP OF DIRTY CLOTHES, FOUND

But Not Until Mrs. E. L. Hoffman Had Gone Through Several Exciting Hours.

Mrs. E. L. Hoffman of 720 Academy avenue wrapped diamonds worth $1000, and $230 in cash in a handkerchief and slipped the bundle into the side pocket of her little son's coat hanging in the closet before she went visiting Sunday afternoon.

Then she forgot where she had hidden the valuables. "Sonny" Hoffman jerked the jacket off the closet hook Monday morning when he got ready for school. Ramming his hands into the pockets he pulled the handkerchief out and tossed it into the wash heap.

An hour later Mrs. Hoffman thought of the jewels and the money and then of the hiding place. "Sonny's" jacket was missing. She ran to the school. Of course "Sonny" had forgotten all about the handkerchief. He did not know anything about the diamonds nor the money.

BRIGHT SKIES AND BALMY WEATHER OF EARLY SPRING TYPE

Storms Which Threatened St. Louis Have All Been Sidetracked, Says Forecaster.

TEMPERATURE.

Midnight	57	9 a. m.	55
1 a. m.	57	11 a. m.	58
3 a. m.	55	1 p. m.	61
7 a. m.	50	3 p. m.	65

It is going to be warmer—just a little bit. The temperature in the next 12 hours will be just balmy enough for early spring, but not up to the average of late May. The forecaster says that there is nothing but nice, clear, sunshiny weather in sight. All of the storms which threatened to swoop down on St. Louis have been sidetracked.

The official prediction is: Fair, with rising temperature Monday night and Tuesday; east winds, shifting to southeast. Minimum temperature Monday night will be about 52 degrees.

At 7 a. m. the thermometer registered 50 degrees. It is warmer in the Northwest and along the Canadian coast and springlike breezes are playing about the Gulf of Mexico.

The temperatures in other cities at 7 a. m. were: Boston, 54; Chicago, 44; Denver, 56; Galveston, 72; Kansas City, 50; New York, 56; Philadelphia, 60; San Francisco, 50; Washington, 60.

HEN BURSTS INTO SONG, HALTS CHURCH SERVICES

Queen Ann Doesn't Cluck, Never Laid an Egg, But She Can Warble.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LIBERTY, Pa., May 20.—Miss May Frick's Rhode Island hen, "Queen Ann," known for miles around as the singing chicken, burst into song Sunday in front of the Methodist Church and so swayed the worshipers that the services were suspended temporarily.

"Queen Ann" is probably the most extraordinary fowl that ever came from an egg shell. She was one of a brood of 11 hatched under a tree in which a colony of thrushes had made their homes, and filled the air with their melody at early dawn.

The theory is that some prenatal influence was exerted on the chick before she broke through the shell and that her un-hen-like voice is the result.

"Queen Ann" does not cluck like other hens. Tempted with a few grains of rye, which she seems to prefer to corn, she will thrill like a canary. The volume of sound is deeper and not so shrill as that of the yellow feathered songster, but the gradations from the sharp staccato to the long legato are perfect.

"Queen Ann" never has laid an egg, but anybody in Liberty will lay odds that she has no counterpart in the world.

ABE HUMMEL BEGINS HIS ONE-YEAR PRISON PENANCE

Disappears Behind Blackwell Penitentiary Doors—Hid His Face From Crowd.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, May 20.—Abraham H. Hummel, who for nearly a third of a century was one of the most widely known and successful criminal lawyers in this city, today began the service of a one-year sentence in the Blackwell Island Penitentiary.

The sentence was imposed upon a conviction two years ago for conspiracy growing out of Hummel's connection with the Dodge-Morse divorce litigatio. Hummel fought the conviction through several courts, but the final decision was adverse. He also has been disbarred from practice in the courts.

Hummel started for the Penitentiary from his home in East Seventy-third street in an automobile and without a guard. He had been at liberty on bail and had given his promise that he would go voluntarily to the prison today. A big crowd was gathered in front of the Hummel residence when the little lawyer dashed out of a basement door, holding a handkerchief in front of his face. He ran to the curb, jumped into the closed automobile and a moment later was whirled away toward the prison.

VAULTED ELEVEN FEET, BREAKING THE RECORD

Louis Enos, aged 17, an Alton High School athlete, broke the Illinois State record for pole vaulting Saturday in the interscholastic field meet at Illinois University by vaulting 11 feet. The former record was 10 feet 7 inches. The Alton School sent a team of six men to the Champaign meet, at which 50 Illinois schools and colleges were represented. Enos not only won the interscholastic record, but also the State championship. He is a brother of Edward Enos, a well-known Illinois athlete, and he will now train to beat the world's pole vaulting record, which was established Saturday in the dual meet between Harvard and Yale. Enos is a son of Dr. W. H. Enos of the Enos Sanitarium at Alton.

RIVER BOTTOM DRAGGED FOR ADAMS' BODY

Searchers With Apparatus Now on Scene of Drowning.

WILL RAKE MERAMEC

Walter H. Baker, Victim's Companion, in a Canoe, Describes Accident.

Reatives and friends of Leigh Adams, the young St. Louis athlete and business man, who was drowned in the Meramec River Sunday afternoon after an 18-mile paddle with a dozen other companions in canoes, began a systematic search for the body Monday morning.

Dragging apparatus was obtained at Valey Park, and in wide-bottom boats the men rowed to a point opposite the Arnold boathouse. The searchers believe the body was caught on snags on the river bottom at this point.

Adams was a fine swimmer, and his companions are at a loss to explain the drowning. The accident occurred on a smooth stretch of the river. Upsets at this point never have been taken seriously, as there are few eddies and the current is not treacherous.

Adams was in the second canoe of the line strung out over a quarter of a mile. They had started at Crescent, Mo., and were paddling rapidly in order to catch the 6 o'clock train for St. Louis at Valley Park.

Paddled Fast For Warmth.

Walter H. Baker, assistant comptroller of the National Lead Co., who was in the canoe with Adams gave this account of the accident to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"We were not racing," he said, "but it was getting cold and we all paddled rapidly to keep warm and to catch the train. Ahead of our canoe was the canoe with R. S. Johnson and Oliver H. Greene. In our canoe Adams was in the bow, paddling on the left side. I sat in the stearn paddling on the right and steering. I don't know what made us lose our balance. But we wobbled suddenly and then turned over. I had all my street clothes on with the exception of my coat. Adams had on an outing shirt, trousers and shoes.

"I remember that I didn't come up for an unusually long time. I suppose my clothes held me down. When I did reach the surface I saw the overturned canoe some distance away and back of me I saw what I took to be Adams' forehead just above the water and I was sure I saw his right arm swing out of the water in an overhand swimming stroke in the direction of the canoe.

Saw Green Diving.

"At the same time I caught a glimpse of Greene in the canoe ahead diving into the water, and of Brown, who was with him, tumbling into the water as their canoe overturned. Then I heard W. H. Hoevel, who was in the canoe behind us, calling out, 'Keep cool, Adams, you're all right. Grab hold of the paddle.' Hearing this, I supposed that Adams was all right.

"When I reached the overturned canoe I put out my hand to grab it. Each time I did so it slipped away from me. I began losing my breath and getting frightened. Then someone yelled to me to grab the cross bar underneath the water. When I reached the canoe again I did this and got a good hold.

"Then I had my first chance to look around. I saw Greene back at his canoe holding on. There was no sign of Adams, only some clothing floating around. Greene called out he had gone after him twice.

"The whole thing seemed to happen in a second. The other canoes had come alongside by this time, but there was nothing to do then. I held on to my canoe and another canoe pushed it to the shore. Then we went down to Valley Park."

Adams was statistical clerk of the National Lead Co. Oliver Greene, whose heroic effort to save his companion nearly cost him his own life, is assistant manager in the same firm. Harold Brown, who was in the first canoe with Greene, is local manager of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co.

BABY HID UNDER BED COVERS

Father Feared Kidnaping and Telephoned the Police.

"Send officers to 1420 Morgan street. My baby has been kidnaped," said an excited voice over the telephone to Night Chief of Police Gillaspy about 9 p. m. Sunday.

Detectives Fox and Maupin had gone about a block after being detailed to the Morgan street address when the telephone bell rang again.

"You needn't mind sending the officers. I have found my baby," said the voice that had spoken before.

"Did the kidnapers bring the child back?" asked Gillaspy.

"Oh, no. He wasn't kidnaped at all," said the voice at the other end. "You see, he got cold and crawled under the covers. My wife awoke and missed him. We searched the whole house and couldn't find him, and then my wife made me telephone for the police. After I had telephoned we found the baby at the foot of the bed. He's a cute little devil."

HIDDEN BRIDE TRIES TO UNDO HER MARRIAGE

Mrs. Philip Gleason Holds Daily Consultation With Lawyer.

WEDDED AT MIDNIGHT

Says Liquor Made Her Irresponsible at Time for Her Action.

With all her hopes centered upon the outcome of the trial at which the legality of her unfortunate loveless marriage is to be tested, Mrs. Philip Gleason, who until just a week ago was Miss Luella Phelps, is seeking to repair the blunder into which a strange fate led her.

Her midnight marriage to Philip Gleason was solemnized while she was under the influence of liquor and while she was irresponsible and did not know what she was doing, she says. She has asked the courts to set her free and to annul the marriage, which is hateful to her. While the trial is pending she is holding daily consultations with her attorney, William Fish, and her effort is to furnish him with the means and the evidence which may be used to attain her object. In the meantime she is living with friends who have offered aid in her distressing plight.

The commonplace events which led to so fateful an ending Mrs. Gleason told to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday morning. Until the day following her marriage, she roomed at the home of Mrs. Belle Copman at 1413 Olive street.

"As we had often done before, Mrs. Rex McDonald, whom I met at the house, and I started to go out to supper together that Monday evening," she said. "A short distance from the house we met Mr. Gleason and a Mr. Callahan, who was with him. I knew Mr. Gleason slightly and Mrs. McDonald was acquainted with Callahan.

Accepted Supper Invitation.

"Gleason called to us and asked us where we were going. We stopped and I was introduced to Mr. Callahan and I made Mrs. McDonald acquainted with Gleason. We said we were on our way to supper.

"One of them suggested a party of four for supper and although I wasn't dressed for it I said all right and so did Mrs. McDonald.

"We went to a cafe on Fourteenth street. While our orders were being prepared the waiter brought in four cocktails. I hesitated about tasting mine, but it seemed such a little thing I drank it. I don't know why, maybe because I had eaten nothing since 11 o'clock that morning, but it seemed to go to my head, and I got a little dizzy from it.

"I forgot about this as the supper came. Someone was telling a funny story and even then I wondered why it was I laughed so hard at it. In a little while my cheeks began to burn, but the dizzy feeling wore away. I felt light-hearted and gay, and then when several bottles of beer were opened and a filled glass was placed before me, I drank it without a thought. I drank another glass and another. All the time we were eating I drank with the others. I was never under the influence of liquor before and did not realize what was happening to me.

Doesn't Know Where She Was.

"Then we left the restaurant. We took a street car out on Olive street and we went somewhere, what it was or where I cannot even now recall.

"It was at that place out on Olive street though that Mr. Callahan said, 'you two make a pretty good couple, why don't you get married?' Gleason said, 'We will,' and I laughed and thought it a fine joke. Then Callahan said, 'I dare you to get married.' Gleason told him he wouldn't take a dare and I was still laughing.

"Yes, I admit it, I didn't know what I was saying but I told them I would agree, I said 'All right, I'll get married with you.'

"The next thing I remember we were all in the parlor of a house. I remember there were a lot of pictures on the wall and I was trying to look at them with one eye closed. Another man came and asked me some questions.

Fainted During Ceremony.

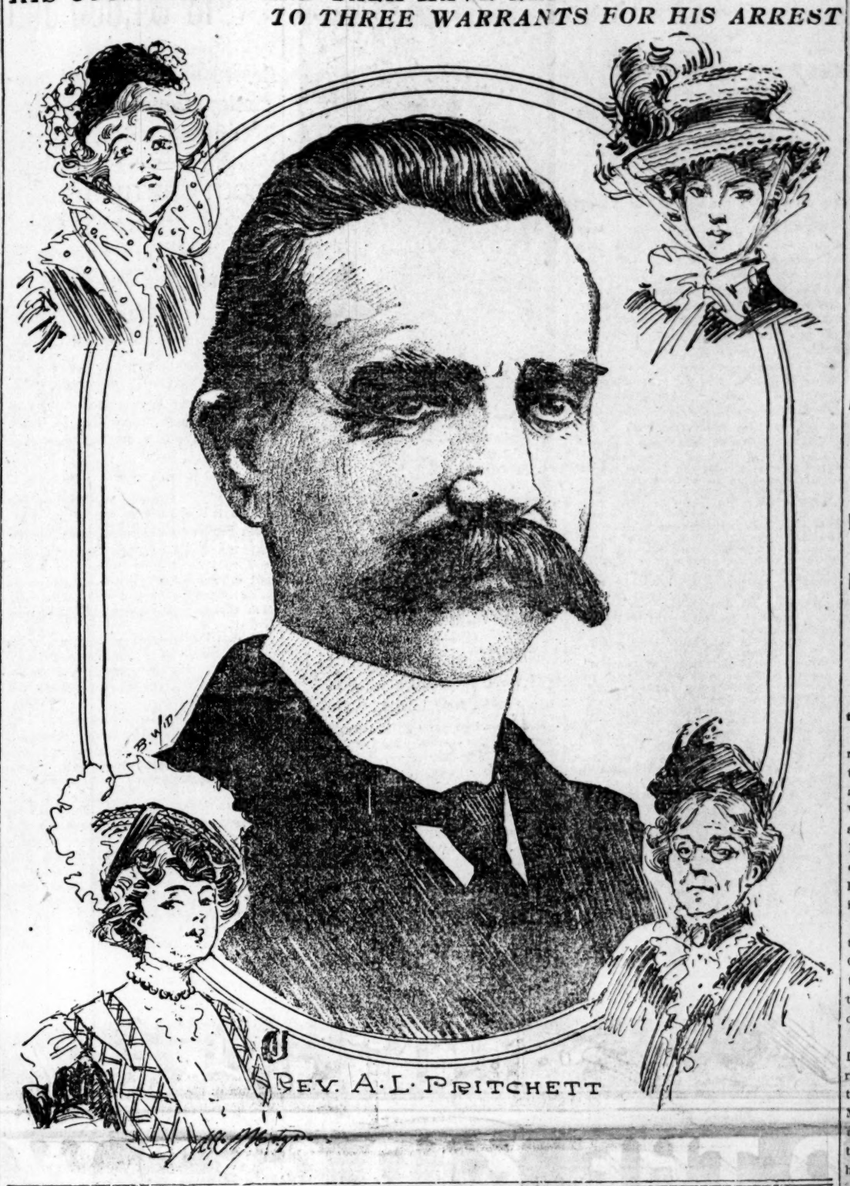

"Then it happened. I see myself clearly even now as I stood at Gleason's side in a wide doorway between two rooms. Even then I began to grow fearful and when the man said, 'You are man and wife,' I started to scream out, but I don't think I did, for I fainted.

"The fainting spell and the water they threw on my face drove the liquor from my head. I did not at once realize the awful thing I had done. My first thought was that I had been intoxicated with the others and I wanted to get away from them as quickly as I could.

"Out on the street the thing grew upon me. I tried to tell myself that it was all a joke. I asked Callahan, 'Surely we aren't really married? It's all only a joke?' He shook his head and told me, 'No, you're married all right.' I think had I not wanted to get away so badly I should have fainted again. I ran away from them and left them all standing on the corner.

"When I reached my room, although it was 2 o'clock in the morning, I sent for Anthony Moresci the young man who has been attentive to me. I cried out the story to him and now I am trying to have it all undone. I can think of nothing for the future until I have cleared myself of this trouble."

HIS COURTSHIPS AND TALK HAVE LED TO THREE WARRANTS FOR HIS ARREST

ACCUSES BLOND MOTHER-IN-LAW

Mrs. Josephine Maulhardt Says Fortune Teller Foretold Her Family Woes.

Emil W. Maulhardt obtained a divorce Monday from Josephine Maulhardt, who he alleged, was so fond of visiting fortune tellers that she acquired "an uncanny disposition."

He charged also that she was already married when she became his bride, but this accusation was not proven.

The Maulnardts were married March 15, 1905, and separated Dec. 14, 1905. They lived at 1906 Cherokee street.

While Maulhardt's divorce suit was pending, Mrs. Maulhardt applied for a warrant charging him with wife abandonment. There was a scene at the Four Courts when she fell on her husband's neck and begged him to return to her.

On the witness stand Mrs. Maulhardt did not deny that she had visited fortune tellers frequently, but she said that she did so with the knowledge of her husband.

Got License to "Get Even."

She indignantly denied that she was married when Maulhardt led her to the altar. She admitted that she had gone to St. Charles with her former husband, Joseph Moehring, and that they obtained a license, but she said no marriage ceremony followed.

She said she obtained the license for the sole purpose of "getting even" with Moehring. She wanted to "throw him down" and "make him feel bad" by jilting him. In this way, she said, she "got even" with him for his treatment of her while they were married.

She said that one of the fortune tellers told her after her marriage to Maulhardt that a "fair-complexioned" woman would come between her and her husband.

"It came true, all right," she said. "It was my mother-in-law. She answered the description to the dot."

WOMAN STRICKEN BY DEATH AFTER CHAT WITH EMPLOYER

Margaret Lemon Obtained Employment as Housekeeper Under the Name of Davis.

After preparing the first meal where she had been employed as housekeeper for George Hohenegger, 3047 South Broadway, Mrs. Margaret Lemon stepped from the doorway of the squalid apartment and fell to the floor dead, Sunday night.

Mrs. Lemon did not arrive at the house until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. She was 50 years of age, and apparently in good health. The sudden death caused a commotion.

"She just came in the afternoon," said Hohenegger, the employer. "I had advertised for a housekeeper and several answered. I selectd this woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Lulu Davis.

"After preparing supper we chatted. I retired and she went to a couch. A few minutes later she got up and went to the door, apparently in a coughing spell. She did not return and I went out and found her dead."

A son, George Lemon, was located by the police and identified the body. "The circumstances of the death are unusual," said the son, "but my mother once before suffered from a kind of heart trouble."

HOW PASTOR'S LOVE FOR TWO FOUND HIM OUT

Two Women to Whom He Was Making Love Met and Compared Notes.

WARRANTS ARE READY

LETTERS WERE WARM

Reverend Boarder Accused of Trying to Break Up Family.

"Has Elder Pritchett been talking to you about me?"

This question, put by Mrs. Dora Murray, a Wellston widow of four months, to her hostess, Mrs. Matilda Ridenour, aged 30, a Sunday school teacher in the Wellston Park M. E. Church, brought about the discovery that Rev. Andrew L. Pritchett, aged 60, pastor of the church, was making love and writing love letters to both women and "talking to" each woman about the other.

Pritchett, who has since quit the pastorate of the church, is said to be in Omaha. His return to St. Louis County is awaited by deputy sheriffs with three warrants for his arrest on charges of criminal slander of females.

As exclusively told in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, Mrs. Ridenour and Mrs. Murray are named as complainants in two of the warrants. The third, it was learned Monday, was sworn to by Mrs. Donley, a bride of a few months, who charges that Pritchett "talked about" her to her husband.

Pastor Pritchett was a boarder at the Ridenour home, 6314 Audrey avenue, Wellston, when Mrs. Murray took dinner there March 7 last.

Preacher Acted Strangely.

"Mr. Pritchett acted strangely, as if he didn't like to see Mrs. Murray at the table," said Mrs. Ridenour to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday, when seen at her new home, 6504 Crest avenue, some distance from Wellston.

"After dinner Mrs. Muray said to me: 'Has Elder Pritchett been talking to you about me?'

"I didn't like to answer at first, and she said: 'He told me not to tell you he was coming to see me.'

"Then I told her the minister had told me things about her I didn't like, and I was astonished when she replied that he had told her the same sort of things about me.

"We haven't been very good friends for some time, because of his talk. When she told me that he had been mailing her letters, I read her some sentimental things he had written to me, and she said that he had written those very words to her. When we found that he had been trying to play us off against each other, I made up my mind to get him out of my home, which he had almost broken up by making love to me and telling me stories about my husband.

Driven Out With Poker.

"When he told me next day, as he had told me before, that he knew my husband was going to see a woman in Webster Groves, I took a steve poker and drove him out of the house. Then I told my husband about the letters, and though it almost broke up our home and caused us to move to another neighborhood, we finally agreed and united with Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Donley to punish him.

"My husband and I went over to Mrs. Murray's one evening, thinking we would find him there and could have a general explanation. When we came near the house we saw Pritchett outside, with his face against the window. My husband called out for Pritchett to wait for us, but he ran away and we haven't seen him since."

Pritchett, while laboring as pastor of a mission church, had also been engaged in the insurance business. He acted as state manager for a life insurance company, his son being associated with him in an office in the Commonwealth Trust building. He had told his parishioners that he possessed considerable property, and had talked of giving thousands of dollars to children's homes and other church institutions.

These stories regarding the minister's possessions suggested to the Ridenours, when they had become reconciled, that they demand financial reparation for the expense of changing their home and for the suffering which both had undergone.

Demanded Money in Letter.

A letter, containing a demand that $2500 be paid to the Ridenours, was soon after received by Pritchett. The circumstances under which this was mailed are in dispute between the Ridenours, Pritchett's son, J. H. Pritchett, and

WITH BANDS AND VANS CIRCUS HAS COME TO TOWN

Barnum & Bailey Bring Wonderland for Youth and Thrills for Elders.

THE CROWD WAS NOISY

Putting Up Tents One of the Greatest Wonders of Show.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said,
"The circus I will see tonight?"
If such there be, go mark him well,
For him no childhood raptures swell—
He misses half the day's delight.
—Lay of the Third Press Agent, With Apologies to Scott.

A lustrous-eyed giraffe, shivering, thrust its delicate nostrils deep into the luke-warm water giraffes in captivity drink, in the huge menagerie tent at Laclede and Vandeventer avenues, when cold rain began drizzling Sunday afternoon.

"Ugh, this is beastly weather," the giraffe complained to a fellow. "For weeks not enough sun to warm a lizard! Would that I might return to the Nubian forests and snip the tender tips from the treetops."

Baby Is 46 Years Old.

"Baby," an elephant ironically so named on account of her huge bulk, peacefully pushed an immense, cumbersome menagerie van into place, chewing thoughtfully as she did so. "Baby" is 46 years old, but she is a remarkably well preserved old lady, and no one, to see her for the first time, would suspect she was older than her 26-year-old daughter on the other side of the tent.

"Of what use to complain?" she asked the giraffe contentedly. "We have enough of water and food, and the children feed us roasted nuts."

"Asian ass," grunted a fat, ungainly camel, wallowing discontentedly in fresh straw in the middle of the tent. "Thou art pleased with anything. I say, may blisters from Eblis fall on the black-garbed sons of this land. Surely they are bitten with a madness. Here we sprawl on straw and tomorrow will walk around an oval fringed with staring fools. Is there ever a smell of the hot sands or the sight of a blue black night and golden stars? Do you ever hear the sound of running water at a roadside well in the early evening, when it is a pleasure to be tired and the men sit down to smoke?"

A collar bear from the plateau of Tibet, sniffing the moist air discontentedly, was about to add his approval to this complaint when the advent of a trainer put a stop to the colloquy.

Crowds Gather Early.

Hundreds of people who blackened the big lot and the streets bounding it knew nothing of this conversation, except that they heard sundry mysterious sounds issuing from the tent. They were conscious only that "the biggest on earth" had returned to St. Louis, after an absence of 11 years, and they wanted to see all that was to be seen in advance.

Those who were on the lot at 8 a. m. saw a big red van drawn by six powerful horses lumber into the field. Others and still more followed, and in less than an hour the big mess tents—one for the draft horses and another for the aristocratic performers, lifted themselves into air.

All this bustle, this flapping of acres of double-ply white duck, this roaring and squealing and grunting and chattering of jungle folk, this flaunting of tinsel and gilt, this rumbling of immense wagons, this splashing of fresh blue paint on tent poles, this swearing at canvasmen, this wholesale cooking of foodstuffs, this jabbering of foreigners, this scattering of sawdust and straw—this controlled pandemonium—meant that Barnum & Bailey had come to town. It meant wonderland for the youngsters and thrills galore for their elders. Not content with the single thriller which formerly sufficed as the climax for the circus, the show this year offers two—the "Dip of Death," in which Miss Butler flirts with the hereafter and Capt. Howelson's jump on skis across the "yawning, death-inviting chasm."

Compressed Air Drives Stakes.

The stakes for the Barnum & Bailey tents are driven with compressed air. All the hot air with the circus is used in the department over which Dexter Fellows presides. With the compressed-air stake drivers and with machinery by which horses raise the tons of canvas, getting the circus into shape, is a matter of celerity and precision. In spite of the apparent confusion it soon becomes evident that every man knows what's expected of him. That is necessary where more than a thousand men are at work and about six hundred horses, "detraining" four sections. Barnum & Bailey is a cosmogony—a little world within itself. It includes 14 bookkeepers, 27 assistant treasurers, six auditors, two interpreters, a secret service, Red Cross department, blacksmith, wagon and paint shops, a postman, attorney and a weather forecaster.

As for the circus—that must be seen. The menagerie includes 24 elephants, by actual count, three giraffes and nearly two hundred other rare animals. The acrobats, riders, trapezists and other performers are said to be even more daring than ever, and it is promised that the three rings and two platforms will be busy all the time.

HOTEL GUESTS LEAVE BEDS TO FIGHT A NEARBY FIRE

Structure Close to Seven Mile House Destroyed—Other Buildings Threatened.

A two-story frame building on Easton avenue, three-quarters of a mile west of the city limits, was destroyed by fire at 2 a. m. Monday. The building was owned by the Terminal Association and had been fitted up for a saloon, but was not occupied. It is not known how the fire originated.

The burned building stood near the Seven-Mile House on the St. Charles Rock road. The guests of the hotel left their beds and joined the bucket brigade. In the immediate neighborhood are several large manufacturing plants. They were threatened by the flames, but were saved by hard work. The Hunkings & Willis Lime and Cement Co. and the St. Louis Frog and Switch Co.'s plants were scorched. Many telegraph, telephone and electric light wires were burned apart.

Another Free Day at Museum.

Prof. Ives and directors of the Museum of Fine Arts are considering a plan to add Thursdays to the other free days of the museum. The present free days are Friday, Saturday and Sunday. About 2300 people visited the museum Sunday.

MARSHAL FAILS TO ARREST DIPLOMATS

DES PLANCHES GETS ANGRY

Ambassador Threatens to Run Over Official With his Automobile.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Town Marshal Collins of Glen Echo, Md., tried to arrest his Royal Highness, the Duke of Abruzzi, commander of the Italian squadron at Jamestown, the Italian Ambassador and three automobile loads of diplomats and naval officers for speeding on the Conduit road yesterday. Instead of the fat fine he planned to turn into the Glen Echo treasury, he got a dressing down that was far from diplomatic. Baron Mayor Des Planches, the Italian Ambassador, when stopped by the officials, informed him who he was, refused to submit to arrest and ordered Collins to get out of the way if he did not wish to be run down.

An automobile ride to Great Falls, followed by a luncheon by Mrs. Henry May at the Country Club, was a part of the entertainment planned by the Ambassador for his royal guest. They were due to return through Glen Echo about the middle of the afternoon. When it began to rain Mayor Garrett of Glen Echo, advised Marshall Collins to let the automobiles race for home if they wanted to, but the doughty official, who has been patrolling the road arresting scorchers and firing on those who refused to stop, presisted in his duty.

When the three Italian automobiles hove in sight he rode up on his motor cycle to Cabin John bridge, timed their passing and then sped around them to a point within the jurisdiction of Glen Echo and timed them again. He asserted they were exceeding the speed limit, which, as it is lower in Glen Echo than elsewhere on the Conduit road, often catches the ignorant.

He Angered Von Radowitz.

"You are under arrest," Collins told the chauffeur of the first machine, after he had overhauled him. The chauffeur told Collins he would better see the gentlemen in the last automobile. When Collins approached he found Baron Mayor des Planches in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. It was only last week that Collins ordered Herr von Radowitz, second secretary of the German Embassy, to stop and fired a bullet at the tires of his machine when he sped on. That made a diplomatic incident which will probably require an official apology to Germany.

Marshal Collins was prepared with a speech to the effect that the law knows no rank, and "orders was orders," and no person could exceed the speed limit unless he did it across Collins' dead body. Baron des Planches gave him no time, but, getting out of the machine in the pouring rain, confronted the official.

"I am the Ambassador of Italy," he stated. "Do you want more trouble? We are going on to Washington, and if you don't stand out of the way you are likely to get run over."

"Well, you've got to reduce your speed," announced Collins, somewhat abashed.

"You just watch us," cried one of the occupants of the machine, and the three cars leaped forward and were out of sight in a moment. Marshal Collins went sadly to his house.

PHOTOGRAPHED POLICEMAN; MINUS LICENSE; ARRESTED

Policeman Stevison of Central District, in his new summer uniform, saw an opportunity in the presence of a street photographer at Seventh and Pine streets Sunday afternoon.

"What do you charge for taking a picture?" asked Stevison.

"Nickel a throw," responded the photographer. Stevison posed. The photographer pressed the bulb.

"You're under arrest," said Stevison when the photographer announced that the picture had been taken.

"What for?" asked the surprised photographer.

"Doing business without a license," said Stevison.

At Central District Station the protographer gave his name and address as Ben Rheinhart of 1615 Olive street. When searched $16.50 was found in his pockets. He said business had been good.

"Do you think I'll take a good picture?" asked Stevison, as he escorted Rhinehart to the holdover.

"You'd take a whole gallery of them if you had a mind to," replied the photographer as he entered the "dark room." An hour later Rhinehart was released on bond and told to appear in the City Hall Police Court Monday morning. Stevison's picture has not been finished yet, but he looked for developments in court.

BURNHAM ASKED TO RESIGN

Indicted Insurance President Opposed by Directors.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Herald says that Frederick A. Burnham, president of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Co., has been asked by the Board of Directors of the company to present his resignation not later than Wednesday. In the event of his failure to resign, steps will be taken to declare his office vacant, and also to elect Archibald C. Haines to his place.

Action looking to Mr. Burnham's resignation is said to be a result of his indictment and the conviction of his brother, George E. Burnham, of fraud and forgery in connection with the company. The directors said his continuance at the head of the company was an injury to the business and an indorsement of the methods which led to the indictments.

GREEK OVER THE PHONE WAS NOISY ENOUGH TO BE HEARD IN TWO STATES

Union Station Crowd Amused by First Experience of Man From Greece.

A score of persons gathered around a booth in the Union Station Monday while Bokori Karibitan, just arrived from Greece, used the telephone. It was his first experience. He had his own notions about how it should be done.

Karibitan approached Patrolman Wardenski in the midway of the station, and said something Wardenski did not understand. Wardenski speaks seven languages, but Greek is not one of them. By cupping one hand around one ear and making a circular motion with the other hand at the other ear, Karibitan made the policeman understand what he wanted. He showed Wardenski a slip of paper with the address and telephone number of a Madison (Ill.) merchant.

Wardenski got the connection and Karibitan sat down in the booth, fingering the receiver gingerly and with evident suspicion. He said nothing, and Wardenski, to help matter along, shouted "Hello" into the transmitter. Something happened at the other end of the line which caused the waiting Karibitan to drop the receiver with every indication of terror.

When Wardenski made Karibitan understand that the receiver wouldn't hurt him the Greek again took his seat and began conversing in his native tongue. He apparently thought he must talk loud enough to be heard at Madison, Ill., and his voice was heard all over the midway. An amused crowd gathered about until the five-minute conversation was completed. Karibitan walked away with a bet-you-can't-do-it air.

SOVINER, BOND JUMPER, IS BROUGHT TO ANSWER VICE TRAFFIC CHARGES

Schawacker Gives Surety for Man Who Caused Epstein $2400 Loss.

Louis Soviner, who was indicted three years ago for trafficking in young girls in High street houses, returned to St. Louis Monday in custody of Special Officer Smythe. Soviner "jumped $2400 bonds on six counts while his trial was pending, nd Samuel Epstein of 4222 Morgan street, who signed the bonds, paid

Soviner fled to South Africa and returned two months ago to New York, where he lived on the East Side. An emigrant from New York to St. Louis, who had talked with Soviner there, brought word of his whereabouts to St. Louis, and Epstein notified the New York police arrest him.

He was arrested on the description Epstein sent, and Epstein went to New York to identify him. The prisoner fought extradition, but lost, and Smythe was sent after him.

Soviner was charged jointly with May Smith, proprietress of a High street house, with inducing girls under 18 years of age to enter the place. His trial on the first count was set for June 9, 1903, and he failed to appear. Epstein cannot recover the $2400 bond he forfeited.

Soviner was arraigned before Judge Sale and put under new bonds for $5000, which Chris Schawacker, a professional bondsman, supplied. Sovinger refused to make any statement. Epstein was not present when he was arraigned.

The others were rescued with difficulty.

MISSOURI LOSS ON WHEAT CROP IS $4,000,000

Representative Deal of Mississippi County Complains of Cold and Insects.

ABOUT ONE THIRD YIELD

Grain Got Early Growth in March, but Roots Are Rotting.

Destruction threatens 75 per cent of the July wheat crop in Missouri, involving a total loss to the farmers of probably $4,000,000, according to State Representative E P. Deal of Mississippi County.

Mr. Deal is the owner of 4000 acres of farm land in Southeast Missouri. That section is regarded as one of the ideal grain producing countries of the world.

At the Laclede Hotel Monday, Mr. Deal said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that during his 29 years' experience as an agriculturist he has never witnessed such discouraging conditions as now prevail.

"It is not surprising that wheat is soaring above $1 a bushel," said he.

"What is true of Missouri is probably true of every grain country throughout the United States.

Not Half a Crop.

"The recent heavy rains, combined with the invasion of the army bug, one of the most destructive insects known to the farmer, have laid waste our fields.

"While plants have the fresh, green appearance of substantial growths, the roots are rotted and it is now a question with us of plowing up to sow corn or some other staple cereal.

"I rode over my farm last night. Sections that produced 28 bushels last year will not produce 10 now.

"If I can get a yield of 30 per cent of July wheat, speaking in comparison wit hthe yield a year ago, I shall feel satisfied.

"More than half of the crop is sure to be destroyed. The other half can be saved only by cool weather and an occasional shower.

"The failures of the last decade will be nothing compared to that of 1907, unless conditions speedily improve.

"During March, when we had summer weather, wheat enjoyed an abnormal growth, but with the appearance of rain and frost the crop received a severe setback.

200,000 Bushels Good This Year.

"Then came the army worm, which nipped the tips of the plant.

"Last year Mississippi County, which is the sixth largest grain-growing county in Missouri, shipped 750,000 bushels of wheat.

"If we save 200,000 bushels between now and September we shall consider ourselves lucky."

Mr. Deal would not forecast the grain market. He declared it as his belief that the rise in wheat to $1.03 a bushel was due to actual conditions more than to speculative sentiment. It would not surprise him, he added, if wheat climbed to $1.15 or $1.20 a bushel.

"As I look at it," said he, "we shall have to rely on Europe for an abundance of wheat."

NEW DIRECTORS FOR PLANTERS

All Has Not Been Harmony in Hotel Management.

Russell Gardner, W. A. Cochran and Dr. W. G. Lyons were elected to the directorate of the Planters Hotel Co. at a meeting of the stockholders Monday morning.

Directors Jackson Johnson and Forrest Ferguson tendered their resignations because, it is said, of differences existing in reference to the management of the hotel. The third director, Dr. Lyons, was selected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Edgar Rand.

Seattle Exposition Estimate.

The Lewis and Clark Exposition brought 120,000 persons from east of the Rocky Mountains to the coast in 1905. With the foundation in exploitation laid by Portland for Seattle to build upon, says a writer in the Pacific Monthly, the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition will bring at least 250,000 in 1909.

Man With Bad Record Held.

Joseph A. Wilson, alias Bruce, and a half dozen other names, whom the Bertillon records class a "first-class pickpocket and a dangerous man to have around," was arrested at Union Station Sunday evening while sauntering about among a crowd of travelers. He told the police he had just "run in" to St. Louis and as proof of the statement displayed an excursion ticket good for a round trip from Cleveland, O., to this city. He admits that he has served time out of Philadelphia, Cleveland and Terre Haute. When arrested Wilson fingered nervously a watch which he carried in his vest pocket. The detectives grabbed it and when they questioned him about its make he became confused. The watch is held as evidence and Wilson is locked up for investigation.

LOVE LETTERS OF CLERGYMAN

John B. Christensen, an attorney who has figured in the case.

The letter demanding $3500 reads as follows:

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11, 1907.
Mr. A. L. Pritchett.

Sir: Having fully considered all matters we submit the following proposition as a basis of settlement upon performance of which on your part we agree to institute no civil suit or criminal prosecution against you and to commit no personal violence.

1. You are forever to abstain from speaking to us or either of us and forever abstain from visiting our home, wherever the same may be, for any purpose whatever.

2. Your written admission should be made that Mr. Charles Ridenour is not guilty of improper association with women other than his wife and that any statement made to such effect by you or by any others is untrue, or produce evidence as to the guilt.

3. The payment to us in cash of $3500 being the sum of $1750 to each of us. This offer is made for immediate reply by return mail and in haste.

CHARLES RIDENOUR,
MRS. CHARLES RIDENOUR.

P. S.—Mr. A. L. Pritchett, you may not consider this proposition, but you must be careful, as it took you two years to destroy the happiness of my home. Now hustle and help build it up. But you have destroyed more than man can build, and, remember, when you get Charles Ridenour for an enemy you have one, indeed, and you had the friendship. Now you are caught and have the worse. Now sweat for it.

Dispute About Letter.

Christensen says that, at a conference in his office in the Commonwealth Trust Building, he advised against mailing such a letter. He says that Ridenour mailed it despite his advice.

The Ridenours say that they understood Christensen's advice to be that they mail the letter, and that it was actually mailed by J. H. Pritchett, who was present when it was written. Mrs. Ridenour also says that J. H. Pritchett suggested a money settlement as a means of preventing publicity, which he said would injure his family and the church.

The younger Pritchett says that he knew nothing of the letter until his father received it, and that the letter and other circumstances lead him to regard the charges against his father as merely an attempt to obtain money.

Mr. Ridenour says that he personally wrote the postscript though the body of the letter was composed by Attorney Christensen.

"My Darling Sweet Girl," and "Little Tillie Pet," are two of the phrases by which Mrs. Ridenour, who is the mother of three children, is addressed in the letters attributed to Pritchett. "Your Best Friend on Earth," is one of the signatures. The letters were addressed to "Tillie Heltman," her maiden name, and were received at the general delivery window of the St. Louis Postoffice.

Mrs. Ridenour admitted Monday that she answered some of the letters, but said that she did so only because Pritchett threatened to commit suicide if she did not.

Begged Her to "Fly" With Him.

"He took some stuff at the house once," she said Monday, "which he told me afterwards was arsenic, and I had to give him cream and eggs to bring him around, as he got awfully sick.

"He would kneel before me and plead with me to fly with him, saying that he had agreed with his wife to provide for her, and that my husband was deceiving me. I told him I would not leave my husband and children, and more than once he wept in my presence because of my refusal.

"I believe now he was a hypnotist, from the way he persuaded my husband and me, against our will, to take him for a boarder. When we told him we hadn't bed covers for him, he said he would sleep under his overcoat, and he did for quite awhile, although often telling us about the money he had.

"After he had been found out and had left our home, my husband got a letter signed 'Miss Katy,' which it seemed to be intended that I should open. I held it for him, and he read it to me and compared the handwriting with those in my letters. It seemed to be the same."

Mrs. Murray, when seen Monday at her home, 1574 Wellston avenue, corroborated the story of Mrs. Ridenour as to the manner in which the two women discovered the minister's conduct regarding them.

She said that a money settlement was suggsted by the younger Pritchett in the conference at Attorney Christensen's offic, which she attnded. It was her unexpected appearance at this conference which caused a sharp tilt between the two women, who were still distrustful of each other, before the lawyers could explain.

Says Son Proposed Settlement.

"J. H. Pritchett proposed that we should both ask his father to settle the matter on a money basis, Mrs. Ridenour for $3500 and I for $200," said Mrs. Murray. "I signed a note, and it was sent to Pritchett, I don't know how.

"I expected when I went to the lawyer's office to meet Presiding Elder Carlos and the late Bishop FitzGerald, but they were not there."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11, 1907.
A. L. Pritchett.

Dear Sir: The way to settle with me is to pay me the sum of $200, the same to be paid in five days. If not in that time, you know the consequences. Yours,

MRS. DORA MURRAY.

The home of Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Pritchett in Webster Groves is closed. A Post-Dispatch reporter who called there Monday was told by neighbors that it has been untenanted for three weeks.

Mrs. James Henry Pritchett, who lives in another part of the same suburb, at Gore avenue and Jackson road, when seen Monday, said that her husband left home last Thursday and wrote her from Kansas City since that he may not return to St. Louis until June 1. She said she does not know the whereabouts of her father-in-law.

Charles Ridenour, husband of the chief complainant, said Monday that he also went to the lawyer's office expecting to meet the chief officers of the Methodist Church in the St. Louis District. He says he understood that Attorney Christensen was Bishop Fitzgerald. The Bishop was at that time on a tour of the world. He died a month ago in China.

Of the conference, Ridenour said:

"My wife and I met Henry (J. H.) Pritchett and another man about 50 years old. My wife and I were told that he was the Bishop.

"The 'Bishop' asked me what I wanted from Pritchett and I told him no amount of money could compensate me for the damage he had done and the poison he had put into our family. But I said I would take $3500 from him and keep my mouth shut.

Denies Mailing Letter.

"I didn't demand money. They asked what I'd take and I told them. Then the man who said he was the 'Bishop' wrote the letter to A. L. Pritchett, and my wife and I signed it. I added onto it in my own handwriting that no money could repair the damage he did, but that as long as he took two years trying to break up my home, he could work a couple of years to pay up for it.

"The letter that I signed was mailed by Henry Pritchett. Now they say I mailed it. I did not. It looks like they were trying to trick me into a violation of the postal laws, but they didn't succeed.

"I have lived at Wellston nine years, and I never had any trouble with my wife until after Rev. Mr. Pritchett came into our family circle a little over two years ago.

"I have a letter written in a disguised hand that I will show at Pritchett's trial, if they ever find him. It is signed 'Katie,' is addressed to my wife and tells her things about me. I will pay $50 reward to anybody who proves it was not written by Pritchett."

"About a year and a half ago my wife commenced to quarrel with me, saying I associated with other women. I had done nothing of the kind, and was astonished at her charges. But she continued to tell me stories she heard about me and we continued to quarrel.

"At first I thought women gossipers had been telling her falsehoods about me, and I ordered all her women friends whom I thought might talk to her to keep away from the house. But she still continued to hear stories about me and other women and to tell me about them, so I knew the stories must come from some other person.

Saw an Eavesdropper.

"On the night of March 8 last, when my wife was quarreling with me, I heard my dog bark and went out into the yard to see what was the matter. Going around the side of the house, I found Rev. Mr. Pritchet crouched under a window on the side of the house, where he had been listening to our conversation.

"When he saw me he ran and I shouted at him 'You don't need to run, Brother Pritchett, you're caught this time.' But he ran, anyhow, and he's such a sprinter I couldn't catch him.

Attacked by Robbers.

The police are looking for two men about 19 years old who nearly beat William R. Norborg to death early Sunday morning. The men were frightened away by Frank Taylor of 615 North Compton avenue, who fired three shots at them. Norborg said that the men attacked him from behind. A key ring, an ivory rule and two knives were taken from him. He lives at 3206 Bell avenue.

PASTOR'S LOVE LETTERS TO A MARRIED WOMAN

GREEN BAY, Mo., Feb. 26, 1907.

Miss Tillie Heltman.

My Darling Sweet Girl: Your message of love just received 10 minutes ago. The train was 10 minutes late and it seemed an hour to me. I was disappointed when I did not get a letter from my pet yesterday, and of course my heart did ache and I tossed on my pillow all night. You say you worked so hard it made you nervous.

Well, sweet one, I have been so since I saw you my sweet girl; and then not getting your sweet word yesterday, I am nervous, too, but I will try to write so you can read what I say and what I fail to write you can read between the lines.

I want you to be feeling well when I get home again and then if we do not have a good time it will not be my fault. And I shall not be in a hurry, either, for I can do a good business in St. Louis. You say things are no different from what they were. No, and they will never be better for you until you are free so I can care for you, and then I will see that you are not mistreated. The man or person that misuses you had better hide his face. Just think and remember that you have one friend that would die for you, for I love you better than tongue can tell. If I did not see you once in a while I would not want to live. I expect to do all I can to bring joy to your heart. The pleasure you see with me now is only a shadow of what may be yours if you only trust me.

YOUR BEST FRIEND ON EARTH.

"SWEETEST OF ALL THE SWEET."

BETHANY, Mo., Feb. 26, 1907.

The Dearest Girl on Earth to Me: My life has given me no more pleasure than the going to the Postoffice today, and when I saw your sweet letter I could hardly keep from saying aloud: "She is the sweetest of all the sweet." I am sorry you were disappointed when you went to the Postoffice Friday and could not get my letter. I can't understand how it was the letter was open. I expect it came open because it was so full.

I am sorry you did not get your new coat to wear to church Sunday. If I can't be with you I want you to look nice, for you are my sweet, little Tillie Pet. I hope your brother Joe will come, for you will then have someone to take care of you when I am away.

I have realized for a long time that I loved you better than any being on earth. I have not changed my mind and I never will. Never! Never! Never!!!

Well, when that young lady said we acted like sweethearts you could have said truly we are just that. Yes, my darling one, you have found the right one for you and one that will be true to you when the mountains fall. I am a true man, and I know my dear girl is true. Well, the time of freedom will come, and if my Tillie proves true we will be one. Yes, you did me sad, but I forgave you before I got through reading your letter. I cannot hold aught against you, my darling. It is said a man and wife are one, and if so, if I would be offended at or mistreat you I would be mistreating myself.

Well, I will close, for I must get to work. Don't fail me, my sweet darling Tillie Pet. . . . Just a few more and I will bring you some fresh ones Saturday. My love for you will never die.

YOUR BEST FRIEND IN EARTH.

BREAKS INTO POETRY.

Extract from a letter written Jan. 31, 1907:

When the golden days of life are past
And we talk no more together,
One of us will be left alone
And will think of and love forever.

When the last link of the chain of life !
The sweetest thought for you and me
Nothing but kind words to each other
Have ever yet been spoken.

The day of parting is sure to come
And our hearts with pain will quiver,
But if you are left to live alone
Remember the token and the giver.

Tillie, oh Tillie, dearest name on earth to me,
The one so good and true and sweet,
The days, oh they seem so long
Till you and I can meet!

Crusade Against Spitters.

Members of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association if they carry out the injunctions of speakers who addressed them Sunday afternoon will cause the arrest of every person they detect spitting in a street car or in a public place. The protest of the association and the plan to combat the evil took the form of a resolution which was adopted. The arrest of spitters will be asked for wherever they are found by members of the association. The meeting was held in Fountain Hall, Broadway and Chippewa street.

TERMINAL TRUST MAKES PUBLIC PAY FOR BRIDGE

A Discriminatory Passenger Rate From St. Louis to East Is Charged.

ADD 75 CENTS TO FARE

J. M. Chesbrough Discloses Conditions in Government's Fight.

J. M. Chesbrough, general passenger agent in St. Louis of the Pennsylvania lines, testified in the Government suit to break up the bridge and terminal monopoly, that the passenger rates from New York City to St. Louis over the same roads were 75 cents higher than they are from St. Louis to New York. Exactly the same service is rendered, Mr. Chesbrough said. He added he did not know, and never had known, why this discrimination was made in favor of New York.

Mr. Chesbrough was used as a witness to prove that passengers to and from St. Louis are charged the usual 25-cent rate across the bridge. One of the auditors of the Terminal Association testified at a previous hearing that charges are now made on a per car basis. Mr. Chesbrough said that in most cases the passengers are charged 25 cents each way for passage over the bridge.

Seven Roads in Deal.

Edwards Whitaker, who was one of the promoters of the Alton Bridge, testified that the Terminal Association opened up negotiations for its purchase. Whitaker said that he understood there was a row among the 11 roads comprising the Terminal Association at that time relative to the purchase of the bridge. He thought seven of the roads got together and bought it for $800,000, and then issued bonds for $790,000 to pay for it. President Davidson of the Frisco system, who is also president of the Alton Bridge Co., testified some months ago that all the roads were in the deal to buy the bridge.

Roads Which Kept Out.

Whitaker's recollection was that the Iron Mountain, Missouri Pacific, Wabash, Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, Vandalia, Big Four and Louisville & Nashville bought the bridge, while the Chicago & Alton, Southern, Burlington and Illinois Central refused to go in on the deal.

Whitaker was used as a witness principally to establish the fact that the Terminal Association started the negotiations that finally led to the purchase of the bridge. The hearing will be continued before Commissioner Rombauer Tuesday.

YANKEE RAILWAY IN MANCHURIA

Japan Is Buying Her Supplies in United States.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Simultaneous with the presence of Gen. Kuroki in New York City comes the announcement that the Tokio government has placed in this country, mostly with the New York City agencies, $12,000,000 in orders for equipment for the South Manchuria Railway. This line, which traverses 1500 miles of sparsely settled territory, is to be completed in the next two years, which will be record-breaking time.

To insure such delivery, Japan has bought 50,000 tons of rails at the Carnegie mills for $28.50—considerably above the market price. Another order of 13,000 tons was placed at $29. Other orders are pushed aside to rush the rails to the Japanese. One car concern has received an order for 1000 freight trucks. The bodies of the cars will be built in Dalny.

Over $2,000,000 has been spent for American locomotives, of which 200 have been sold for the South Manchuria line. From Dalny to Mukden the traveler will ride in American cars, pulled by Yankee locomotives over United States Steel Trust rails.

ESSEN, ST. LOUIS CO'S BOSS, STARTED IN POLITICS WITH MULE AND HORSE TIED TO CAMPAIGN WAGON

Now Undisputed Dictator of Community of 60,000 Persons.

TALKS OF HIS CAREER

Asserts He Has Always Worked for Benefit of the People.

Frederick Essen, who recently became an object of public interest, if not public concern, because of the testimony of W. K. Kavanaugh that he paid him $10,000 for "services in getting the right of way or something of the sort" for the Central Belt Railway Co., is the boss of St. Louis County. He is the dictator of the community of 60,000 persons in the big bailiwick which surrounds the city of St. Louis on the north, south and west.

"See Essen" is a familiar expression in the county. It illustrates his power in county affairs, by implying that anything Mr. Essen indorses in St. Louis County will probably be successful. This applies not only to public offices, but to official favors of all kinds, not even excepting immunity from punishment for some offenses against the law.

Essen's rise financially has corresponded with his advancement politically. The receipt of the $10,000 from Kavanaugh is by no means the largest plum he has picked up along his political roadway. He drew $25,000 for about half a year's work as receiver for the People's United States Bank last year.

Started Without Money.

When he went into politics, and even when he was first elected to office, he had no money. His widowed mother owned a farm and there was a mortgage on it. Now he owns two newspapers at Clayton, is a director in a bank, vice-president of a title company and lives in a beautiful home, surrounded by park-like grounds. But his principal business still is politics.

Fred Essen is 44 years old, but he looks younger. He is 6 feet tall and his height is accentuated by the fact that he is thin. He looks even more slender than he is, as his shoulders are narrow, while his body looks sinewy. His carriage is soldier-like.

Like his body, his face is long and thin. His hair is black and his complexion olive. He wears a small black mustache. In appearance Essen is cold and dispassionate. His face shows little emotion at any time. His eyes are a cold blue. He has a rather large, slender nose and high cheek bones.

Born in the County.

Essen was born on a farm near Pond, a small village in St. Louis County a few miles from Glencoe. As a boy he worked in summer and attended the district school in winter. When 22 he was chosen as a member of the Congressional committee for the Tenth District. He continued working on his farm until he was 31 years old when he decided he had learned enough about politics to run for an office.

J. Henry Zelch was then recorder and one of the most popular men in the county. Essen was not rich enough to own a team of horses, so he hitched a horse and a mule together and started about the county campaigning. His friends say the old politicians laughed at this boy with his patched-up team running against "Uncle Henry" Zelch. But he ran and surprised the county by defeating Zelch for renomination. That meant election.

Having got a taste of office, Essen decided he would like four years more at the same price. He had no opposition for renomination and was reelected. While in office as recorder, Essen was elected county delegate to a convention at Chamois, Osage County, to nominate a Republican candidate for judge of the circuit court. John A. McElhinney was the candidate of St. Louis County. J. A. Kiskaddon was the candidate of Franklin County and J. W. Voshall was entered by Osage and Gasconade Counties. The vote was about evenly divided between the trio and it looked as if Kiskaddon and Voshall would combine their strength for one or the other.

Won His First Fight.

The St. Louis County delegation was ready to return home defeated when Essen asked permission to take a hand at "fixing" things for McElhinney. He went to Kiskaddon and told him if he would retire in favor of McElhinney, the St. Louis County delegation would bring him down to Clayton and see that he got a large share of the practice Judge McElhinney would relinquish. that. Kiskaddon capitulated and McElhiney was nominated. Kiskaddon removed to Clayton where he is practicing law today in Judge McElhinney's court.

This success seemed to inspire confidence in Essen and he decided he wanted to be a leader. So he began laying wires to capture the chairmanship of the County Committee and he did so in 1901, defeating Justice Crecelius of Oakville.

Buys Opposing Papers.

At the first sign of opposition Essen bought the Advocate and in it he warmly defended his every move and action. Later, when he began naming county tickets, the Watchman continued to criticise him and his candidates. F. W. Rauchenstein was publisher of the Watchman. His paper bolted the Essen ticket, on which Edmund Hencken was the regular Republican candidate for Sheriff. But Essen's candidate, Hencken, won. Later, Mr. Rauchenstein died and Essen bought a controlling interest in the Watchman. Now he owns it and has consolidated it with the Advocate.

To fortify himself in the newspaper field Essen went farther and bought a controlling interest in the "Waechter," the German Republican paper of the county. This he still issues. With these publications at his command, the only criticisms of Essen and his party management appearing in the county were published in the Argus, the Democratic organ, which, as Essen's friends put it, would have criticised him anyhow.

With three party organs owned by himself and with the reins of the party in his hands, it is not difficult to see how Essen has developed a sort of dictatorship within the last four years.

Although frequently at the County Courthouse, Essen says that since he became chairman of the County Central Committee he has taken no part in getting franchises in which he is interested from the County Court. He says the Central Belt was the only one he was ever connected with which brought him personal profit.

The facts in connection with the Central Belt Line were printed recently in the Post-Dispatch. Essen helped several St. Louisans obtain a franchise from the County Court, which they sold for $7200. Aikman Welch, one of the incorporators, said he held stock for Essen and that Essen told him that another part of the stock was held by a son-in-law of one of the three county judges and that it was a "cinch" they would get the franchise, although other companies wanted to run a similar belt line across the county, all with important backing.

Accused by Folk.

During his reign as ruler of St. Louis County, the reputation of the county has been severely assailed. It was charged against Prosecuting Attorney Johnston and Sheriff Herpel that they were altogether too friendly to the racetracks and the saloon and gambling interests in the vicinity of Delmar Garden. Gov. Folk charged them with not giving proper aid to the State in the enforcement of the anti-racetrack, anti-gambling and anti-saloon laws.

At the special session of the Legislature recently a bill was introduced to provide an Excise Commissioner for St. Louis County. The racetrack there is closed and this was designed to clamp the lid tightly on the county Sabbath.

This proposition again gave Essen a chance to make a showing. He led the fight to prevent this law from going into effect. He went to Jefferson City and started a campaign. It was successful, even though the Democratic majority practically agreed to pass this bill. Senator Gardner of St. Louis County, a close personal and political friend of Essen, talked the bill to death and now Essen and Gardner are jointly celebrating the triumph.

Standing on his lawn in his shirt sleeves a few nights ago Essen protested that his domination of county affairs was not worth talking about.

Says He's No Boss.

"Im no boss," he said. "The term is distasteful to me. I am merely the head of the Republican organization of St. Louis County. I am no iron-hand ruler or anything of the kind. While I generally have my way out here, it is not because I compel or bulldoze anybody into submission to my wishes. I give all the boys a chance and hear all their views. We have no machine politics in the county like they have in St. Louis. No slates are made up and forced down the throats of the people. The people of St. Louis County would not permit any such thing.

"Politics is not my business. I publish two newspapers and am interested in a bank and a trust company. That's enough to keep one man busy. But I like politics. It is fascinating to me. I have been in it since I was a boy and I have had some success at it.

"I think one reason why I have won in politics has been that I have studied the game seriously. I have not gone around shaking hands and buying drinks and cigars indiscriminately and believing everybody was 'with' me who said he was. I have always believed in organization, getting your lieutenants, giving them work to do, seeing that they did it and appreciating and rewarding them as far as possible for what assistance they rendered.

"I have never made any money out of a franchise from the county outside of this Central Belt franchise. And that came about through the work of others. I didn't originate the scheme to build a belt line around St. Louis County. Tom Sneed did that. He was formerly manager of the Suburban road.

Tells of Belt Franchise.

"I had some interest in the company jointly with Aikman Welch. There was no stock in my name. The franchise was granted to and was sold by Welch, W. H. O'Brien, Harry Waggoner, Sneed and the other promoters to W. K. Kavanaugh for $7200. I got my share of that and Welch got his share. It was after that Kavanaugh made his financial arrangement with me and that was through Attorney L. R. Wilfley, now Judge of the United States Court in China.

"Kavanaugh made a contract with me and one with Wolfley for $10,000 each for services in getting rights of way and other things. We did our work, helped them to get the right of way, got an extension of the franchise for them and got our $10,000 each. That's all there is to that. Kavanaugh was then president of the Interstate Car and Transfer Co. Later the Wiggins Ferry Co. bought this company and the franchise went with it. I understand the Terminal now owns it.

Glad to Beat Bill.

"Now, about my work to beat the excise commissionership bill for St. Louis County, I am proud I did that work. It was necessary for me to do that to defend my political position. St. Louis was singled out among the 114 counties of the State and branded by that bill as the one county that needed to have a special officer appointed by the State to regulate its saloons. I didn't want that kind of a law passed. It would be as much as saying that during my control of the county the saloons became unmanageable by the county officials. I worked hard to defeat it.

"I know there has been a cry of lawlessness in St. Louis County. But people who make this cry ought to think of the limited police force and the size of the county. There is always some fault with a set of officials, but I think our officials, particularly Prosecuting Attorney Johnston and Sheriff Herpel, were criticised more severely than they deserved."

SPRING FEVER RECIPE.

Spring fever, so-called, is frequently a condition of the human system which is not controlled by the will, but is the result of abnormal sluggishness of the blood, from imperfect digestion, which causes food fermentation in the stomach and the retention in the bowels of portions which should be expelled. When the stomach is in this state in the spring of the year, when the diet is changed by the use of green vegetables it causes an acute condition.

The result is an enervating lassitude, most noticeable in the mornings and after meals and frequently increases to such an extent as to render the sufferer unfitted for his daily labors. A prominent physician states that all this can be easily overcome by restoring proper digestion and bowel action, and gives the following prescription, which is said to be wonderfully effective: "Two ounces of Essence of Pepsin, three ounces of Syrup of Ginger, one ounce of Catandir Compound. Mix these by shaking well and use in doses of from one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal and also at bedtime for the first few days." This makes a mixture very pleasant to the taste and is probably the most effective remedy obtainable for dyspepsia, and all disorders of the stomach and bowel tract.

The ingredients can be gotten at any well-stocked prescription druggist.

PARTICIPANTS IN BRAWL FINED

One Must Pay $15 for Hitting Man With Revolver.

Edward Murphy, a private watchman at Lemp's Park, was fined $5 and costs in the City Hall Police Court Monday for fighting. Joseph Bowler of 1012 Lynch street was fined $15 for hitting Murphy in the eye with a revolver, and William O'Neil of 2620 South Tenth street, who used only his fists, was fined $5.

Murphy testified that he went Sunday afternoon to the home of Julia Weber, 19 years old, at 1011 Sidney street, to get a shirt left there by Private Watchman Frank Haubrich. He found Bowler and O'Neil there drinking, he said, and they assaulted him.

Later Haubrich called and quarreled with Julia Weber, who fired three shots at him as he ran from the house. He was not hit. The trouble resulted in an application being made to Chief Creecy by Capt. Hanna of the Wyoming Street Station for the withdrawal of Haubrich's license as a watchman. He and the Weber girl will be tried in the City Hall Police Court next Wednesday.

Boy Missing From Home.

Claude Smith, whose step-father says he is 15 years old, but looks only 11, has been missing from his home, 4531 Shaw avenue, since 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning. At that hour he left to go to work at a tobacco factory in the vicinity of his home. His stepfather George Myers, says Claude weighs 90 pounds, has light complexion and long light hair and blue eyes. He wore a dark gray suit with knee trousers when he left home.

Wife Charges Him With Abandoning Her.

While on a visit to his dying father, James W. McRoberts was arrested in East St. Louis on a charge of abandonment preferred by his wife, Sarah. He gave bond Monday and returned to his father's bedside.

Three years ago a separation contract was signed by the couple. After being apart for a time they again lived together. Last January McRoberts went to Los Angeles. His wife alleged at the time that he had deserted her.

When she learned that he was returning to East St. Louis she obtained a warrant for his arrest on an abandonment charge.

HEARING IN EDDY SUIT POSTPONED

Trustees Will Argue Tomorrow to Be Made Complainants in Suit.

MAY CALL STATE TROOPS

Director of Car Company Says Police Force Gave No Protection.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CONCORD, N. H., May 20.—The arguments of counsel on the motion of the trustees of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy's estate that they be substituted for the "next friends" as complainants in the original suit for an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property, was scheduled to begin today, but was postponed to tomorrow on account of the indisposition of Judge Robert N. Chamberlain, the presiding Judge. The celebrated suit in equity has been a matter of record for almost three months, but no argument between the opposing counsel has taken place yet.

On March 1, 1907, there was filed in the court a bill in equity proceeding signed by George W. Glover of Lead City, S. D., the only son of Mrs. Baker Gover Eddy; his daughter, Mrs. Baker Glover, and George W. Baker of Bangor, Me., the only surviving nephew of Mrs. Eddy.

These three, as "next friends," in legal parlance, of Mrs. Eddy, complained against Calvin A. Frye, Irving C. Tomlinson, Herman S. Hering and Lewis C. Strang of Concord, Alfred Farlew, Ira O. Knapp, William B. Johnson and Joseph Armstrong of Boston, Stephen A. Chase of Fall River, Mass., and Edward W. Kimball of Chicago, alleging that Mrs. Eddy is and has been for some time incompetent to do business, or to understand business transactions for her by others; and that the defendants have possessed themselves of her person and property and that there is reason to fear that they have wrongfully converted her property to their own use.

Ask a Receiver.

On these grounds the plaintiffs ask for an accounting on the part of the defendants and the creation of a receivership for Mrs. Eddy's estate.

On March 11, Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., an adopted son of Mrs. Eddy, and Fred Walter Baker of Epsom, N. H., her nephew, were joined as plaintiffs.

On April 2 announcement was made that on March 6, five days after the institution of proceedings, Mrs. Eddy had conveyed all her property to a Board of Trustees. Henry M. Baker of Bow., N. H.; Archibald McLellan of Boston and J. E. Fernald of Concord, N. H. These trustees asked of the Court the right to intervene and be substituted as complainants in place of Glover and the other "next friends" in the suit of Eddy versus Fry.

Counsel for the "next friends" countered this step on April 6 by asking that the trustees be joined as defendants in the original suit.

To this on April 16 the trustees made answer and prayed for a speedy hearing on their motion. On the same date the original defendants filed their answer to the original bill, entering a general denial of its allegations and charging a lack of good faith in the institution of the suit.

Mrs. Eddy Writes Court.

Meanwhile voluminous affidavits have been filed on both sides, including a letter by Mrs. Eddy herself to the presiding Judge, expressing her disbelief in the good faith of the original proceedings, and asserting that she had resolved even before the beginning of the suit to appoint trustees in charge and control of her property.

Judge Chamberlin has granted already a motion made by counsel for the original complainants asking for 15 days after his decision on today's proceedings to file supplemental bills and pleadings, and it is known that whichever way his decision is made, the matter will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

New Haven Trackmen Strike.

NEW HAVEN, May 20.—Nearly 5000 Italian trackmen employed by the New Haven Railroad Company on all divisions of the road went on strike today as the result of the road's refusing their demand for a 10 per cent increase over their present wages of $1.50 a day. It is said the strike will extend from New York to Boston.

TWO MONTHS OF LOVE AND THEN DIVORCE

Mrs. Lillian Handling Says Edward Was Real Nice for a Time.

THEN HE WEAKENED

Began Gaddin' About With the Girls and Was Mean to Her.

"Why, he said I wasn't good-looking enough to be on the streets or in public places with him," said Mrs. Lillian Handing, a petite blond of 25, in Judge Kinsey's court Monday morning while testifying in a divorce proceeding against her husband, Edward Handing, 4317 Ferry avenue.

"He didn't always have that opinion though," she added with a smile. "During the first two months we were married he was an ardent admirer."

Here Mrs. Handing raised a mourning veil and showed a pretty face and a crown of blond hair.

"Edward was a flirt, too," she added. "He would not only flirt with the young girls of the neighborhood, but descended to the servants. Then it was time for me to take action."

Mrs. Handing came into court clad in mourning. She wore a smile, however, that disabused the idea of great sorrow. According to her testimony she and Handing were married in November, 1903, and separated in June, 1905.

"We went to housekeeping in a flat at 4317 Ferry avenue," said the fair plaintiff. "My father furnished the flat, and we were happy at first. After a few months Ed's habits got irregular. He wouldn't come in until late, and we began to quarrel, and it continued until it got unbearable.

"In one quarrel he even told me that he didn't love me at all and never had—that he married me for spite, just to show some of the girls in the neighborhood he could do it. Just think of that. During the first two months he took me everywhere I wanted to go. Later he wouldn't take me anywhere, but you bet he'd go himself."

According to Mrs. Handing a wedding next door brought the climax. Girls were on the lawn in front of the house.

"I looked out of the window," said Mrs. Handling, "and saw him with the girls, and he was hugging them. I saw it with my own eyes—out there on the lawn, before my very door stoop hugging girls while I was upstairs sick."

Says He Called Her Names.

"Didn't your husband tell you on one occasion to go to a place that is much warmer than St. Louis?" asked her attorney, Max Ruler. Mrs. Handing blushed.

"Yes, sir," was the response.

Mrs. Schlosinger, a sister-in-law, said Mrs. Handing was nice to her husband always.

"But he wasn't nice to her," added Mrs. Schlossinger. "I've heard him refer to her as 'that nothing,' and to call her an 'old thing,' and Lillian wasn't old. She is only 23."

Mrs. Mamie Shoeulau, landlady where the couple lived, testified that the husband was jealous.

"When they were in public together," said Mrs. Shoeulau, "he'd make ugly faces at her."

"Did you see him flirt at the wedding?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, sir. When the girls started to come across the street he would jump up and run to meet them with open arms. You ought to see the center rush he would make for them."

"Did he try to hug them?"

"Yes, but they backed away."

There was no defense to the suit and Judge Kinsey granted the divorce.

Burglars in Clothing Store.

The Foster Mercantile Co. at 2504 Cass avenue was robbed Sunday night. Police found the front and back doors wide open Monday morning and upon investigation discovered a quantity of clothing stacked up in the alley in the rear of the store. More clothing was found in the rear of a house at 1421 Prairie avenue. Altogether the police found 55 pairs of trousers, 46 vests and 22 shirts.

Ireland and Japan Fought.

There was war between Ireland and Japan on an Easton avenue street car Saturday night, and Judge Pollard of the Dayton Street Police Court was called upon as arbiter of their trouble Monday. Frank Takahaski, native of Japan, objected to being referred to by John Maher of 3750 Evans avenue as a "Jap and Chinaman." A fight followed, in which honors were about even. Both were fined $5 and costs. As Judge Pollard thought the son of Erin had no right to abbreviate the word expressing the nationality of the son of Japan, and still less right to call him a Chinaman, Takahaski's fine was stayed, but the Irishman was compelled to pay up.

DISTRUSTED WIFE AND TOOK POISON

Young Husband First Attacked Wrong Man on Street Car and Apologized.

MARRIED A SHORT TIME

Followed Bride and Thought He Saw Her Meet a Man on the Street.

After a rough and tumble fight in a Broadway car at Chouteau avenue with a man who he thought was riding with his 16-year-old wife, George W. Brumley of 921 Madison street attempted to commit suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid on the steps of his home.

Policeman Primm, who had been warned by Bromley's brother, Edward, that he had bought poison in a drug store, arrived just in time to strike the bottle from his lips. Bromley then sprinted for five blocks before the policeman overtook him. He was taken to the City Hospital, where it was found he was burned on the lips and breast when the contents of the vial were spilled.

Bromley, aged 22, says he was married last September, and that recentely his wife formed the habit of going out three or four nights a week. Last night, when she left home at 6:30 o'clock, he followed her and saw her board a car. He climbed on the rear platform, and says he thought he saw her conversing with a man.

After watching for a few blocks, Bromley rushed into the car and struck the man several times in the face. He, who turned out to be Lee Hughes of 2839 Olive street, defended himself, and the car was soon in an uproar.

Woman Wields Umbrella.

One woman who got in the way received a blow in the mouth which loosened several of her teeth, and retallated upon both combatants with her umbrella.

The car was stopped, and the fight was continued on the sidewalk. But when Hughes finally got opportunity to explain that he had never seen Mrs. Bromley before and wasn't talking with her, Bromley apologized.

Mrs. Bromley left the car, saying she was going home after her clothes and to leave her husband. He went to a drug store, bought acid and attempted to end his life.

EMPLOYERS GET RELEASE OF MISSOURI SWINDLER

Caught After Five Years He Is Freed in Terre Haute.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 20.—As soon as Chief of Police Jones arrived Saturday afternoon from St. Joseph, Mo., with T. F. Stierheim, Demas Deming, president of the First National Bank, was ready to sign his bond for $500 and Stierheim returned to St. Joseph to resume his duties this morning as superintendent of a big hardware and harness manufacturing company, and at whose instance, through banking channels, the service by Mr. Deming was obtained. This action on the part of employers of a man wanted for swindling an employer in this city five years ago out of $300 was due to the confidence now felt in him. He is Francis W. Slade to his friends in St. Joseph. About six months ago the Terre Haute authorities learned that he was in St. Joseph and the police there were asked to find him and arrest him. Working for the same company was his stepbrother, who went by his right name of Stierheim. The stepbrother knew that W. F. Stierheim was wanted in Terre Haute and had agreed to leave on the first intimation that the Terre Haute police were inquiring in St. Joseph. This ruse was successful and until last week the police were in the dark. The St. Joseph police again were informed that the man wanted was in St. Joseph, and with better description and other information were able to pick out Slade. Stierheim's wife has been in Terre Haute all the time, and her husband had been sending her money regularly until two or three months ago. He says that he wanted to reimburse his old Terre Haute employer and could have done so if partial payments would have been satisfactory, but he understood they would not have been.

Returned From Tramping Trip.

Morris Levin, aged 18, who with Brooks Davis, 20, of Arp, Tex., was arrested in the railroad yards at Sixteenth street and Clark avenue, Sunday evening, told the police he was returning home after a "hoboing" tour of two years. His parents live in the neighborhood of Seventh and Biddle streets. The youths were covered with dirt. They said they had been riding in box cars and on "bumpers." They were locked up in the Four Courts holdover for investigation.

BIG TELEGRAPHER STRIKE IMMINEN

Western Union and Postal Employes Demand Recognition of Union.

WILL MEET THIS WEE

Committee Is Called to New Yor and General Strike Order May Result.

By Leased Wire From the New Yor Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The members of the National Executive Committee of the Commercial Telegraph Union of America have been summoned to this city to take action regarding the Western Union Telegraph Co. The committee is expected here by Wednesday or Thursday, and upon its arrival it will present its grievances to the officials of the company. Should these demands be ignored or refused, there will be a strike of the telegraphers, not only in this city, but throughout the United States.

In the event of a strike, the telegraphers of the Postal Telegraph Co. will be involved as well, as it is stated that the Postal and Western Union officials have been acting in harmony in their opposition against the union.

The members of the Executive Committee are: R. J. Fowler of Memphis, chairman; M. J. Reidy of Boston, E. C. Hill of Toronto, S. J. Konenkamp of Pittsburg and James M. Sullivan of New York.

The committee will insist upon the reinstatement of four women and five men who have been discharged, because, it is alleged, they are members of Telegraphers' Union. Upon this point rests the question of strike or no strike. No other point will be taken up and considered until this has been disposed of, and as the Western Union officials are determined at present not to make these reinstatements, a strike appears inevitable.

All this was discussed at an open meeting of the operators yesterday afternoon. The hall was packed with 2000 men and women, who unanimously voted to summon the Executive Committee to New York to take action.

Brought Happiness

are frequently unhappy.

Children come naturally and without great pain, to women who are in good health.

It is the women who are suffering from female diseases who suffer from, and fear, childbirth.

The lack of children, in homes where they are ardently desired, is generally due to some form of functional disease or derangement which, in many instances, has been relieved or cured by the Cardui Home Treatment.

Mrs. S. M. Keene, of 210 Queen St., Alexandria, Va., writes: "My doctor told me I would have no more children until I had an operation performed, so I wrote your Ladies' Advisory Department for advice, which I followed. After taking 10 bottles of Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught I was blessed with a little girl baby. The Cardui Home Treatment saved me money, prevented an operation and brought happiness to our home. I praise it highly to all my friends. I write this, not for my sake, but for the sake of helping others to make their home as happy as ours." NEWS OF THE THEATRES

AMELIA BINGHAM worked so hard in the title role of "Mam'selle Marni" at the opening of the Suburban's season last night that she ripped wide a seam of her gown at the armhole, but there wasn't really any necessity for it. The big audience was assembled primarily to give her a hearty welcome "home" for the summer, and she could have played any old way and still have received the most cordial of greetings.

But that isn't her manner of doing things, so she took hold of Henri Dumay's heroine with her best foot foremost, striving just as earnestly as if everyone out in front wasn't a personal friend of hers and so glad to see her opening the Suburban for the new summer season that you could fairly feel enthusiasm and friendliness in the atmosphere. It was a great opening, too—the big and vastly improved Suburban Theater was packed to the doors, the smiling Oppenheimer brothers were kept shaking hands with the rallying clans until you'd almost have thought they were twin Presidents holding an inaugural reception, and Richard Spamer was so happy over the auspicious event, and the fact that Mrs. Spamer is about to return home after an absence during which she saw their son blissfully married and started on his honeymoon that he danced about the scene as blithely as a faun-footed fairy with literary and dramatic leanings. There was no doubt as to the cordial attitude of this initial audience—it was as friendly as a basket of chips, so to speak.

A great towering stand of flowers went across the footlights when Miss Bingham, as Mam'selle Marni, prima donna of the Paris Grand Opera, made her first entrance with a little girl street waif in her arms and straightway began auctioning off posies for the girl's benefit. In company with the flowers rose a ringing round of applause, repeated many times thereafter, until the star was made very much to feel that she was indeed "Our Amelia" to Suburban playgoers. Others of last summer's company also received the "glad hand." Little Perla Landers, playing the part of Liane Salvador, star ballet dancer of the opera, kicked her feet up in a daring dance almost as soon as the first curtain rose and brought down the house with every flourish of her twinkling slippers. Harry Fenwick was clapped to the echo as he came on. So, too, were Walter Gilbert and Florence Fisher—and even J. Gordon Edwards, chronic and incurable villain of the Suburban casts though he is, received so ardent a welcome that you'd have thought villany was at a premium for the nonce. And, along with these greetings of old friends, came the big comedy hit of a newcomer, Mr. Wilson Hummel, in the role of Denis Boisselot, buffo of the Grand Opera—there's a player who has become a prime local favorite in a single night. Watch him—he's going to run young Mr. Gilbert one of the prettiest popularity races this summer that you ever saw in your life.

As for the play, written by a clever young Frenchman who used to be a grave an dreverend seignor of Washington University's faculty, it is the "makings" of a good play. It has an excellent dramatic story, a story which a skilled playwright would have shaped into a "smashing" play of tense situations and compelling heart interest, but Mr. Dumay hasn't himself done what could be done with it. Nevertheless, a good story is always a good story, and it seemed to me last night that the new Suburban company made this play "go" almost in despite of its author. The part of Mam'selle Marni fits Miss Bingham better than one would think at first glance, even though her charity concert song behind the scenes had to be sung by Miss Marie Hrdlicka of St. Louis—and very cleverly Miss Hrdlicka sand it, too—and in the play's best dramatic moments Miss Bingham acted with so much genuine fire and feeling as to hold her audience unmistakably absorbed in interest. Mr. A. H. Van Buren, who took the leading male role of Comte Raoul de Saverne, in love with Mam'selle Marni, and whom we saw as Ben Hur at the Olympic during the regular season now just ended, acquitted himself to the liking of the house and is backed by good looks that promise to make him something of a summer matinee idol. Other newcomers who made favorable impressions were John F. Doyle, as the blind financier, Van Duzen; Harry Sheldon, as Pierre de Montigny, a composer; Floyd Fenimore, as Dr. Vernier, a fashionable French physician, and Miss Helen Courtney, as Mme. Reval, grandmother of Mam'selle Marni.

The play was especially well produced scenically.

"Two Little Girls" at Garrick.

When Harry MacDonough hobbled stiffly onto the stage at the Garrick Theater last night, disguised in the grotesque make-up of the gouty Gen. des Ifs, not a smile rippled over the faces of those who saw him. It seemed for a brief time as if this, the chief comedy role of the play, were about to fail of appreciation, but before the act was half completed MacDonough was having everything his own uproarious way. After the first short interval of misunderstanding the audience entered heartily into the comedian's grim and and purposeful way of making fun, and the theater rang with laughter.

MacDonough only bids you laugh at him—never with him. Half the laughter he gets from his lines is due to his own comical "business." His methods are as odd as they are effective, and he made the distinctive hit of the evening.

"Two Little Girls," for which the Garrick was reopened after a period of darkness, is a three-act musical comedy by Andre Messager, the French author of "Veronique." It has undergone transforming touches both in English and American playhouses, but the original farcical plot and some of the original nimble Gallic wit remain. To this have been added touches of quaint rural British humor and broad sweeps of the American kind. There is perhaps a predominance of the last. The provision merchant, misplacing the eggs in his shop, asks in consternation, "Where did I lay those eggs?" and the bald-headed General sagely observes that "a hair on the head is worth two in the brush."

George Fortescue, who took the part of the country merchant, did excellent work, as always. George Fox, as Bagnolet, servant to the General, was capable and pleasing. Elgie Bowen and Ruth Julien are the Marie Blanche and the Blanche Marie of the play—the children who are mixed in the bath a month after their birth, so that no one can tell which is the daughter of Pierre Michu and which the daughter of the General, who left his child with the mercant when he fled from France. The plot turns upon this confusion and the efforts of the General to find his daughter. Neither Miss Bowen nor Miss Julien has a voice of power, but Miss Bowen is so daintily coquettish and Miss Julien so daintily pretty that they make a pleasing couple. May Tunison, as Madame Michu, is personable and vivacious. Harold Crane, as Gaston Rigaud, makes a manly and sweet-voiced Captain of Hussars.

The play is pretentiously staged, the setting in the second act being especially noteworthy. The empire gowns which form the chief costume are a refreshing variation from the accustomed abbreviated dress. The play is opulent in tuneful lyrics, not so sweet perhaps as those in "Veronique," but plaintive enough, some of them, to sing themselves after the play is done, and lively enough as to the others to set the gallery a-whistling.

"The Kreutzer Sonata" at Heights.

"The Kreutzer Sonata," that opened a week's engagement at West End Heights yesterday afternoon and evening isn't at all "The Kreutzer Sonata" in which St. Louis playgoers saw Bertha Kalich at the Garrick this past season. It's a different play entirely, with a different story, different characters and an utter unlikeness to the Kalich offering, so it isn't easy to understand why it was heralded as the same, yet it gives Ethel Fuller opportunity for some very good work indeed in the role of the young Russian Countess Natasha and seemed to please yesterday's two audiences. Frank La Rue, also, made a far more favorable impression as Count Ivan Selenin than as Napleon in last week's cast of "More Than Queen," and the general support was competent, especially so in the case of Muriel Starr, Alice Donovan and Mr. Hersome. The offering promises to achieve a reasonable share of success.

Mannion's Season Opened.

Mannion's Park opened its season yesterday with a vaudeville bill of bright and entertaining quality. Lewis McCord and company, in "Her last Rehearsal," are the topliners. The sketch is familiar to St. Louis playgoers, having been presented several times at the Columbia, but it's a clever act, and seemed to please the Mannion clientele very much indeed. All other acts on the program are new to St. Louis. They include Crenyon, the English ventriloquist, in an astonishing London Music Hall turn, in which he uses five mechanical figures; Grace Foster and Max Ritter, in pleasing character songs and attractive dancing; Coyne and Tinlon in a well-staged acrobatic act; the Merrilles, comedy sketch artists, and the Mannionscope pictures.

"On the Bridge at Midnight," Havlin's.

At Havlin's the spectacular melodrama, "On the Bridge at Midnight," began a week's engagement yesterday afternoon and evening. The production is well staged and played by a capable company. Its scenic effects are striking, particularly that showing the famous "jack-knife" bridge at Chicago, and the story of the play, pathos mingled with comedy, is well brought out.

New Bill at Forest Park Highlands.

The new vaudeville bill put on for the week at Forest Park Highlands has the famous Agoust Family of jugglers as its topliners. Other features are Warren and Blanchard, talking and singing comedians; the Tivoli Quartet, Frank Markley, banjoist, and the popular Marco Twins, who hold over from last week. Well's Band is now playing the last week of its Highlands engagement, and the concerts at the Tekko Gate are much enjoyed.

Good Crowd at Delmar Garden.

Delmar Garden was well patronized yesterday afternoon and last night. The attractions are the concerts by Bafunno's Band and the many concessions, all of which are now in operation. The Delmar opera season begins next Sunday evening with the production of "The Idol's Eye," the Victor Herbert comic opera in which Frank Daniels made a big hit several years ago.

Cherry Blossoms at Standard.

The Cherry Blossoms company began its week's engagement at the Standard with yesterday's matinee. A skit entitled "The Wrong Count Tobasco," opens the bill, and "Look Out Below" is the closing burlesque. A bright olio bill introduces John H. Perry, Clark, Bergmann and Mahoney, in a singing comedy act; Lillie Perry, the original "kodak girl," novelty singing and dancing; Tommy Nolan and Cora White, in a comedy sketch; Frank Ross, the singing Jew; Loro and Payne, comedy acrobats, and others.

Columbia's Goodby Bill.

The Columbia begins the last week of its season this afternoon with a bill which has the comedy stars, Arthur Dunn and Marie Glazier, as its topliners. Others on the bill are Mazus and Mazette, comedy acrobats; Count De Butz and brother, bicycle experts; Laura Howe and her Dresden Dolls, and Charles Ward, monologist.

"The Little Vagabond," at Eclipse.

Tonight at Eclipse Garden the Stanley stock company will begin a week's production of "The Little Vagabond," a play said to be full of heart interest and good comedy. Yesterday there was a big attendance at this resort to witness the closing performance of the Russian drama, "The Slave Girl."

John E. Young, leading comedian of the Delmar Opera Company, arrived yesterday morning, and both principals and chorus of the company were kept busy during the morning and afternoon in the theater rehearsing Victor Herbert's beautiful opera, "The Idol's Eye," with which Delmar is to begin its theatrical season next Sunday evening. Stage Director Stammers and Musical Director Frank Darling are very much pleased with the chorus, which they pronounce one of the finest they have ever handled. It contains splendid voices, they declare, the people are very apt at picking up stage business, and the girls are said to be unusually handsome. Messrs. Stammers and Darling also predict that some of the new principals will make a great summer hit in St. Louis.

CANDIDATES HAVE SAME NAME

Two John F. Fitzgeralds Aspirants for Mayor in Boston.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, May 20.—Two mayoralty candidates bearing exactly the same names, but representing radically different platforms, promise to complicate the municipal election next December. One is the present Mayor, John F. Fitzgerald. The other is John F. Fitzgerald, a roofer, the candidate of the Roofers' Union.

It is feared the similarity of names may result in votes intended for the re-election of Mayor Fitzgerald being cast for his labor union rival. Election officials will be obliged to pay the strictest attention to the manner in which the ballots are marked. Many voters are sure to be confused.

Fitzgerald, the roofer, denies his candidacy is being engineered by practical politicians to defeat Mayor Fitzgerald. The latter said jokingly today: "If Mr. Fitzgerald runs I won't. That's all there is to it. There are so few Fitzgeraids in this city that we cannot afford to fall out over a little thing like the mayoralty."

The roofer has been a roofer all his life, and never before in politics. The Mayor has served in the Common Council, State, Senate and Congress.

COCAINE HOUSE IS RAIDED BY NEGRO SLEUTHS

Place Where Drug Was Sold to White Girls by Negro Woman.

DANCE WAS GOING ON

White Girl in Light Attire Was Entertaining a Large Crowd.

A raid on a "cocaine joint" at 1418 Linden alley caused the appearance of a negress and three negroes in the Police Court Monday. A number of white girls and an aged white man made their escape while the police were smashing the locked and barred door. The negress, Mrs. Mary Burns, is the proprietress, and she claims she has been operating the place for two years without molestation.

When the police interfered a 19-year-old white girl, thinly clad, was dancing in the middle of a room, while white and black men and women were shouting and applauding. Bunks arranged around the walls were occupied by several white girls. Cocaine seemed to be in general use among the inmates. The officers found 100 packages of the drug.

Negress Surprised by Police.

The negress was greatly surprised at the action of the police. She claimed that "nice-looking white girls" came to her place regularly to buy cocaine. She said she never permitted them to use the drug in her house.

The existence of this "cocaine joint" was not known to the police. They acted as the result of several complaints and chose Saturday night at the time when the crowd would likely be largest. The police now believe that there must be several places of a similar character, and an investigation will be immediately made in the slum districts.

The cocaine pills were sold for 10 cents a box by Mrs. Burns.

In a Tumbled-Down House.

"Cocaine Mary's" place is a two-story brick shack in the alley called Linden street, which is populated entirely by negroes. The house is one of the most tumbledown and dirtiest in the neighborhood.

Unkempt and dirty beds fill every part of the house, and in the basement and in the back yard are numbers of pallets for the accommodation of customers.

Poison in Lawless' Stomach.

The report of a post-mortem examination revealing the presence of carbolic acid in the stomach was presented Monday morning to the Coroner's jury investigating the death of Patrick J. Lawless, 30 years old, of 1314 Spruce street, who died suddenly without medical attention Friday. Charles Homeyer, a teamster, charged with having attacked Lawless on the morning of the day he died, has been under arrest since Saturday.

Schools to Celebrate Flag Day.

Flag day, June 14, will be celebrated by the public schools. It has been arranged that by a signal from their teachers the children of the different schools will arise with their flags and swear their allegiance to the United States. "America" will then be sung.

HATED TO SHOCK HIS RESTLESS WIFE

Found Her Eating Chop Suey With Another Man and Walked Away.

THEN HE GOT PUNCHED

Dr. Charles E. Lambert's Unusual Views of Marriage Earn Him $10 Fine.

The peculiar philosophy of marriage expressed by Charles E. Lambert, who found his wife eating chop suey in a restaurant at 510 Market street at midnight Saturday, brought forth scornful comment from Judge Tracy in the City Hall Police Court Monday and caused him to be fined $10.

The other man, Linn Turner of 3209 Washington avenue, was fined $25. Both were arraigned for disturbing the peace.

Lambert said he was a practicing physician and pharmacist, living at 3911A Fairfax avenue. Two weeks ago, he said, his wife left him and began playing the piano in a Market street "penny odeon."

When he saw her in the restaurant with Turner, he beckoned to her to come to him. She walked over to his table and he begged her to leave her companion and go home with him. She agreed, he said, and walked back to Turner and told him so.

Might Fight Some Other Day.

Then Turner choked her, he testified, and he ran to her. Then he changed his mind and walked downstairs, leaving his wife with Turner. The latter followed him, he said, and hit him in the face. The two clinched while the wife looked on. Both were arrested. Lambert said his wife had been meeting Turner, whom she knew before she was married three years ago.

"And still you wanted to live with her?" asked the Judge.

"Yes," said Lambert. "Life is life. You can't analyze the human emotions on short notice. It takes time. My wife is an accomplished woman, 21 years old, and she has a brilliant career ahead of her. She has a natural disposition to be restless, but I think she will get over that as she grows older. I still love her.

Careful of Her Feelings.

"I didn't want to create a scene when I saw her with Turner, because I feel I am responsible for her in health, sickness and death, and I would not cause her a shock."

Turner admitted being with Mrs. Lambert. He said he had gone at Lambert's request to take her home. He testified Lambert had made threats against him.

Turning to Lambert after hearing the testimony, Judge Tracy said:

"If your wife is like that, you had no right to fight for her. I will fine you $10 and Turner $25."

Lambert paid, while Turner filed an appeal.

MISSOURI G. O. P. WANTS HADLEY FOR PRESIDENT

Editor McJimsey Says Attorney-General Will Be State Party's Choice.

SAYS TAFT WON'T DO

Declares War Secretary Never Helped Republicans in This Section.

Taft won't do, Roosevelt won't do and nobody connected with the present national administration will be permitted to say who will do as the presidential choice of the Republican party in Missouri, if the attitude of E. E. E. McJimsey, well-known Republican editor of Springfield, may be taken as an index of the sentiment among his political associates.

Mr. McJimsey is a business partner of Charlie Morris, former secretary of the Republican State Committee. Morris managed the senatorial campaign of State Chairman Niedringhaus at Jefferson City two years ago. Prior to that time he was a loyal lieutenant of Col. R. C. Kerens.

"I am against Mr. Taft because he has never done anything to help out the Republican party of this State," said Mr. McJimsey at the Planters Hotel Monday. "Roosevelt for a third term is an impossibility. I don't believe we can afford to take dictation in this matter from the White House.

"Missouri ought to be for one of the men who has worked for Missouri Republicans.

"Shaw, Fairbanks and a host of others I could mention have always responded to our call for aid. The Missouri delegation should show its gratitude by throwing its strength in their direction."

Mr. McJimsey was asked if he had a preference in the matter of a Republican gubernatorial candidate.

"O, I think everybody will concede that Hadley can have the nomination by acclamation if he wants it," he replied. "I really havn't heard any other name mentioned."

Prefers Folk to Bryan.

"Have you any idea what the Democratic party will do?"

"No. I am not interested in Democratic affairs. If I were, though, I would want Folk instead of Bryan nominated for President. Folk would poll a great many more votes than the Nebraskan.

"I can't see where or how Bryan can get more votes 18 months from now than he did 10 years ago.

"It looks to me as though there will be a landslide to Folk before very long."

ALLURING TALES FASCINATE BOY

Youth Who Ran Away With Male Returns Home.

Frederick Torp Jr., aged 17, who ran away to Kansas City a week ago with his 22-year-old uncle, Thomas Thielson, was brought back to St. Louis Monday morning by his father, Frederick Torp, 1003 South Broadway. The boy was held by the Kansas City police upon his father's request.

As Frederick returned willingly, Mr. Torp has not yet decided whether to prosecute Thielson for kidnaping. It is said that love of adventure and travel led the youth to leave with his uncle, who told him alluring tales of his two trips to Europe and of his travels all over the United States and Mexico.

MEN FIRED IN FUN; ARRESTED

Men Chased Into Saloon by Policemen for Gun Play.

Patrolmen Lindhorst and Halloran of the North Market Street Station heard four shots fired at 5 a. m. Monday at Thirteenth and Montgomery streets, and chased three men into a saloon, where a revolver with four empty chambers was found hidden behind the bar. The men said they only fired in fun. They are under arrest. The names and addresses they gave were: Joseph Nooney, 24 years old, 1628 North Twelfth street; Tobert Pietz, 24, 1910 North Fourteenth street, and Theodore Horning, 27, 1414 North Market street.

MONEY LENDER HUGHES GETS 30 DAYS IN JAIL

Kansas City Man Also Fined $100 on Usury Charges.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—Patrick J. Hughes, a money lender, who formerly had branch offices in a dozen of the principal cities of the country, must pay a fine of $100 and serve 30 days in the County Jail, for exacting usurious interest from J. H. Williamson, a printer. Hughes was convicted in January, 1906, of collecting seven and one-half per cent a month for several months on a loan of $10. He appealed and the Court of Appeals, all the judges concurring, today decided against him on every point. Hughes' appeal was made on technical grounds.

Fuller Sent to Asylum.

Judge Muench Monday committed Osborne Fuller to the State Insane Asylum at Farmington. Fuller was recently acquitted of killing Michael Ryan at the Union Station, Jan. 2, on the ground of insanity. His parents asked the Court to send him back to his old home in Tennessee, where they could take care of him, but the Court decided that he was too dangerous a person to be at large.

Negro as Juryman.

Following the precedent of Coroner Baron, a deputy sheriff summoned two negroes for jury duty Monday in the Court of Criminal Correction. James H. Harrison, an undertaker, of 2743 Wash street, qualified as a juror on the first panel.

DIES ALONE IN HOVEL AFTER YEARS OF FEAR OF COMING OF DEATH

Young Woman Who Had Chosen to Leave Home Falls Victim of Drink.

Alone in a small, damp room in the rear of 2408 North Fifteenth street, Miss Sarah Laffey lived, though importuned by relatives to enjoy the comforts of home with them. In that room she was found dead Sunday morning by a policeman, who forced the door. She had evidently been dead about four days.

An autopsy showed the cause of death to have been cerebral meningitis, accompanied by an indication of softening of the brain.

Miss Laffey worked in a book bindery dread of death," said Mrs. Jeremiah McGrath of 929 Utah avenue, a relative, to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday. "There was no reason why she should have lived and died alone. She was 34 years old."

The body was claimed at the Morgue Monday by Mrs. Sarah Collins, a cousin, of 1516 North Sixteenth street. "For five years I have been keeping up 10-cent weekly payments on an insurance policy on her life,' she said. "The insurance money will pay for decent burial."

"Miss Laffey had a great fear and at $8 a week. She was often absent from her place of employment for a number of days at a time. On such occasions, according to neighbors, she was in her room.

"She would provide herself with liquor," said one of her neighbors, "and remain in her room until it was gone. Occasionally some women friends would join her.

"The last we saw of Miss Laffey was last Tuesday evening. She was then under the influence of liquor. Two of us thought we heard her fall after she was in her room."

NINE MEN STAB AND BEAT CONDUCTOR AND MOTORMAN OF CAR

William Tucker, Arrested With Eight Others, Identified as One of Assailants.

An information charging assault to kill has been applied for against William Tucker of 4542 Page boulevard, who has been identified as having struck Conductor Arthur Shumaker of 3908 Lincoln avenue, on the head Sunday. Eight other men who were arrested with Tucker for the assault on Shumaker were sent to police court charged with disturbing the peace.

Shortly after midnight Sunday nine men boarded an east-bound Wellston car at Jefferson avenue and Morgan street. They were boisterous and when the conductor asked for their fare they refused to pay. A quarrel followed and one of the men struck Shumaker in the face. The others then joined in the assault. Some of them drew knives and others brass "knucks." One of the men plunged a knife into Shumaker's back near his spine and another, whom he identified as Tucker, struck him on the head with some weapon.

Motorman Edward Shelton of 4271 Lucky street, ran to the aid of Shumaker and was beaten and stabbed twice by the assailants before they jumped from the car. Other passengers on the car had fled during the fight. Shelton remained at his post until the car sheds were reached, where his wounds were dressed.

The police arrested nine men in an alley near Twenty-second and Biddle streets. Tucker was among them.

Pockets Picked on Car.

Alfred J. Platt of 415 Washington avenue and Alexander Baptiste of 3639 Cook avenue have reported to the police that their pockets were picked while they were riding on a Broadway car near Locust street. Platt lost two notes, one for $50 and the other for $100, while $40 in money was taken from Baptiste.

ONLY HATS AND SHOES NEEDED

Burglars Got Coats, Vests, Trousers and Shirts.

The Dayton Street Police Station looked like a clothing store Monday after a part of the plunder stolen from the Foster Mercantile Co. of 2502 Cass avenue had been found in a stable in the rear of 1441 Cleary avenue.

The plunder consisted of 40 pairs of trousers, 27 coats, 34 vests and eight shirts. Of the stolen property more than half has not yet been found.

Mrs. Heckerman, 1442 Sheridan alley, told the police she saw three men leaving the store with bundles at 4 a. m. Monday. Richard McCormack, 1445 Cleary avenue; John Tobin, 1437 Cleary avenue, and Mike Fitzgerald, 2315 Cass avenue are held. They deny the theft.

Introducing the New Facial Massage Vibrator
At the Simmons Store

WHILE vibratory treatment has long been recognized as being of inestimable value, the prohibitive cost of the necessary appliances has limited its use. The need of a moderately priced vibrator has long been felt, but until now no successful one has been produced.
We consented to introduce this vibrator because we know it is one of merit—one that will prove satisfactory in every way, and one that we can offer at a price that anyone can afford. Let us say a few words concerning it.

THIS illustration shows the complete vibrator—no electrical or other attachments necessary. The simplicity of its construction is a strong feature—no complex parts needing constant repair. The materials entering into its make-up are the very best that can be obtained. It is small and compact and can be used when you are traveling as well as at home.

IN this illustration is shown one of the methods of using the vibrator. Even with one treatment you experience a pleasing sensation—a feeling of exhilaration, brought about by the increased circulation of the blood. Through its continued use the skin becomes clear, wrinkles are removed and their cause eradicated, and nervous headaches are soothed.

The benefits derived from the use of the vibrator are permanent. It is mild in operation—simply being a gentle aid in the natural functions of the skin and nervous forces.

Much more might be told about this wonderful little machine, but the most convincing argument in its favor is a trial. Ask to see it.

SOCIETY

Glen Echo, in its spring dress of green, and its shining clean face of white and yellow paint, was the scene of Monday's largest social function.

Mrs. John Watson, who makes her home at the Parkhurst, invited 100 women friends to take a special street car out to the club with her Monday afternoon, to play bridge and enjoy the pleasures of this delightful country club. Accordingly at half after two the house presented an animated scene, with dozens of women in pretty spring toilettes, and a multiplicity of handsome hats. Fashion now demands that card party guests shall keep their hats on, so that the large Dutch dining room, where small black oak tables were placed for the game, looked like a flower garden Monday afternoon. Palms and flowers banked the mantels and adorned the sideboards.

Mrs. Watson, who wore a handsome lingerie gown of hand embroidered white batiste, with white lace hat trimmed in white roses and lilies of the valley, received in the living room, which was trimmed in greens, to carry out the green and white idea of the mural decorations and hangings, all new and fresh this spring.

Mrs. B. F. Givens, in a white hand-embroidered batiste gown, made princess; Mrs. Cullen Battle, wearing a coat suit of white linen, striped in pale blue silk, alternating with white linen stripes and white mull trimmed in many Valenciennes lace insertions, with hat of white lace, assisted the hostess. The guests were all matrons, including:

Rational Ideas About Food, Diet, Health—

is all there is to the U. S. Pure Food Laws.
We go a step farther in our big spotless sanitary kitchens and insist on flavor, and a delicate appeal in goods and package that will tempt the most jaded appetite.
Clymer's Seerop Temtors has a flavor all its own—as distinctive as honey—more subtle than maple and best of all a natural—not an artificial flavor. It's just the happy combination of pure granulated sugar and the juices of prime sugar-cane. The clever blending of the two accentuates the natural flavor and brings to mind Seerop Temtors on hot biscuits—"No, nothing else—thank you;" or pancakes, or waffles—"No breakfast food this morning, please;" or muffins—but we can't tell you how good—get a can and taste its ambrosial contents. If the flavor shouldn't happen to suit, tell your grocer—he'll give you back your money.
We find our friction-top can is very popular in three sizes—Trial, Intermediate and Large. Take your choice. The "taste test"—money back plan applies to all.

An Empire of Business
On the site of The National Bank of Commerce in St. Louis lived the pioneer, William Clark, and thence, more than 100 years ago, set forth the famous Lewis and Clark expedition, which added to the United States a territory in the Northwest imperial in extent.
Another empire—an empire of business—likewise started on this spot and centers here. It is typified by The National Bank of Commerce in St. Louis—in point of working capital, the largest and strongest bank in the country, outside of New York City.
Only six National Banks—five in New York and one in Chicago—exceed this bank's resources of $86,705,178.56.
An aggregate capital, surplus and undivided profits of $18,620,704.34 forms the cornerstone of this institution's strength.
This, backed by conservative but progressive management, and a directorate made up of the most substantial business men in the community—directors who direct, has brought us deposits at the present date of $60,455,431.72.
Our depositors are business and professional men of St. Louis and vicinity—men who have built and are building successful enterprises. They bring strength and vigor to the bank along with their deposits.
National Banks in smaller cities of this part of the country have reserve funds on deposit with us to the amount of about $28,000,000—another indication of the paramount place this bank holds.
We pay 3% on time deposits. Have we your account?
If not, we will welcome it and will serve you in all banking capacities with courtesy, promptness and fidelity.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—This is Brooklyn Handicap day. From far and and, racegoers will journey to the Gravesend track to pay homage to the great racers, back the horse they think will win, and eat, drink and make merry, and then come home broke.

Fifteen horse were sent out in the official entry list as the starters for the big handicaps, but it is probable that three of the entrants—Salvidere, Blandy and Beacon Light—will be in their stalls when the bugle calls "Boots and Saddles."

The race will be the first crucial test between the 3-year-olds and the older horses. To win such a race at this time of the year means endurance of an unusual degree, particularly for a young colt. In no other great handicap have the young horses come to the front so prominently as they have in this. Their chances, it is true, are rosy only on paper, but Superman, Arcite and Sewell are such fast youngsters and have shown such a disposition to race that they appeal to horsemen as dominent factors in the forthcoming struggle.

In the minds of most trainers Accountant will carry top weight of 126 pounds. Go Between, the horse of last year's Suburban, is much better now than he was when he wound up the racing year of 1906. Dandelion will carry the hopes of John E. Madden. This son of Hamburg never looked better or raced with more speed or vim than he has this season. He is bigger and stronger than ever before. He will have 11 pounds more weight than he did last season, but he is a much improved horse. He was only beaten a short margin for this event last year after a most wretched piece of horsemanship on the part of Jockey Miller. Tokalon, the Southern mare that won this prize last year, was never better in her life than she is now. In her race this season she has displayed more speed than ever, and her defeat by Go Between was a case of bad luck as she was greatly interfered with at the finish. She showed her usual point of courage and was beaten by a small margin. She likes any kind of track and Booker, her rider, knows her peculiarities well. Her only drawback is her weight, which is 116, which will sit heavily on her in such a fast field of horses as she will meet in this race.

Superman on the Dry.

Had the track been dry all of the Sheepshead Bay residents would have "gone broke" unless Superman won. This 3-year-old son of Commando has raced fast and swiftly enough to warrant the belief that he would lead from start to finish on a good track. His weight, 95 pounds, is a very light one—so light that Walter Miller, who will ride him, will probably have to declare two pounds overweight. Superman's prominence is due to the great race he ran at Belmont Park when he won a mile and a sixteenth contest in track record time carrying 112 pounds. He has speed of a high order and can maintain it for a long journey, provided the track is dry. He is not a good horse in mud. With such light weight he would probably take the lead and hold it to the end. If he did it would give Walter Miller his first victory in a "classic event."

Buttling, the carriage horse, may prove to be the stumbling block in the parth of all the favorites. Two years ago, before he broke down, he was a first-class horse. For a year he was in practical retirement, and was hitched up to drag a runabout behind him. This spring he graduated from the shafts to the racetrack, and won his only two starts in a common canter. He has worked extremely well, and as he is fast and a quick beginner and can go the route, he is a dangerous customer for any horse to tackle.

Sewell Looks Good.

Sewell, the fast little 3-year-old horse that will bring about victory. Both of these colts and Superman are front runners, and as Sewell is extremely fast he may carry the Keene horse at such a clip for the first seven furlongs that the son of Commando will be exhausted when challenged in the stretch by the rear division that have avoided the early pace. Sewell has plenty of speed to get to the front, but as he has never shown a disposition to go the route his chance is not highly regarded except by the members of his stable. Flipflap is practically an unknown quantity this year. Oxford may be depended upon to race well for a part of the journey at least, but he has failed to go a long route at any time this year and he has stopping propensity to a large degree. Beauclere and Beacon Light are selling platers whose chances to win are considered extremely slim. The management anticipates a crowd of 50,000 persons today. The Brooklyn Handicap is fourth on the program and will be decided about 4 o'clock. The first race starts at 2:30 p. m.

Meeting Ends Saturday.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club's spring meet, beginning today at Gravesend, will end Saturday next, and the game will be transferred to Belmont Park again. During the present week nine important stakes will be decided, the principal ones being the Brooklyn handicap, Parkway handicap, Expectation stakes, Empire State steeplechase, the Futehogue and the Carlton stakes. Today's features will be the Brooklyn and Expectation, the an added value of $3000. The stake feature for Tuesday will be the Preakness, for 3-year-olds exclusively, with $2000 added money. Among the good ones engaged in this race are Ethon, Marathon, Temaceo, Montgomery, Tony Faust, Philander, Arcite, Frank Gill, J. C. Core, McCarter, Sariscenesca, Jack Atkin, Orsculum, Aletheno and Joe Cary. From this list of eligibles, a splendid race should result. The Manhanset stakes for 2-year-olds will be decided Wednesday. It has $2000 added and in it may be seen Ziephen, Seymour Bentler, Transvaal, Master Robert, Fordello and Senator Beckham, all smart juveniles capable of making fast time. Thursday will witness the running of the Patchogue stakes, a dash of six furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward. Some crack sprinters are engaged in this race, among them being Edna Jackson, Pretension, Hyperion II, Handzarra, King's Daughter, Saracinesca, Royal Onyx, Rye, Prince Hamburg, Dolly Spanker and Red River.

Parkway Handicap.

The time-honored Parkway handicap will be fought out Friday. It is a fixture for the 3-year-olds and over at a mile and a sixteenth, with $3000 added. Some of the best horses in training are entered for this event, and it promises to be a superb contest. Among the probable starters are Dandelion, Okenite, Fountainblue, Sewell, Kentucky Beau, Nealon, Tony Faust, Superman, Suffrage, Hot Toddy, Cottontown, McCarter, Dr. Gardner, Jack, Martin Doyle and other good ones. On a fast track the race should be run in record time.

One of the most spectacular steeplechases of the season will be run on Saturday, when the Empire State will be decided. This is a rich event for the timber toppers, having an added value of $5000. Several of the best "leppers" in the country are engaged in this event, among them being the sensational Good and Plenty, T. S. Martin, Grandpa, Dr. Nowlin, Agent, Sanctus and Coligny.

A meeting between these across country is certain to be productive of a spirited contest.

Some of the cream of the 3-year-olds are engaged in the Carlton, which is a mile dash for horses of that age, and having a value of over $3000. With Salvidere, Peter Pan, Superman, Okenite, Yankee Gun and Chas. Edward among those who will likely face the starter, a fair estimate should be formed of the probable 3-year-old champion of the racing season of 1907. Salvidere will have his work cut out for him by Peter Pan, Superman and Chas. Edward.

Tizer Loses Horse.

W. H. Fizer, who was for many years a leading turfman in St. Louis, has suffered a great loss by the death of his fine handicap horse, J. L. Inglis. Inglis was engaged in the $10,000 Queen City Handicap at Latonia and Mr. Fizer had the utmost confidence that his horse would be returned winner of that event.

Walter Miller's star, which has been so long in the ascendent, is in partial eclipse. Jockey Notter won both the Fashion and Withers stake at Belmont Park Saturday, and all the critics are unanimous in the opinion that Miller will have a hard time keeping ahead of this boy during the present season.

Notter was developed by "Jack" McGinnis last year, and within the last six months has made marvellous progress as a pig skin artist.

Benbroeck Mark Gone.

Benbroeck's record for a mile, which has stood at Churchill Downs for the past thirty years, was broken Saturday by Ming Ting. It was only by a fraction of a second, however, Wing Ting covering the distance in 1:39 3-5, while the previous record was 1:39¾. This is a long distance away from Dick Welles' record, but the Louisville track has never been considered as fast as Washington Park, in which the Respass stallion made his memorable run.

Many Woodlands Foals.

Fifty colts and fillies have, so far this year, been foaled at Woodlands Farm, principally the get of Bannockburn, Sains and Sir Hercules. In view of the fact that Eastern owners are taking great notice of the product of Woodlands, Missouri-bred horses should be in great demand at the annual thoroughbred sales in New York City. Missouri is vieing with Kentucky in the production of thoroughbreds and will

MORNING PRACTICE FOR THE OFFENDERS

McAleer Hustles Players Onto Lot This Morning to Revive Ginger Charge.

THE SAME TEAMS TODAY

Cardinal Manager Incensed at Treatment of Umpires on the Eastern Trip.

Clark Griffith and his hustling band of Highlanders are certainly working with gilded horseshoes in their mits right now. On Saturday the band won out because of two slight breaks by Wallace and Hemphill, two of our most consistent and classiest of players. Yesterday before a banner attendance little Rhody played much on the order of an over-anxious school boy. He has already saved two or three games this season by phenomenal fielding at critical times, and will pull many a one out of the hole hereafter, but just now ——

Johnny Powell, hero of the series of shutouts, should have been bracketed again. Of course, his pitching was not overly good, but had Wallace and Yeager performed perfectly, big Red John would have cantered home. The contest was loosely played, being periodes with heavy swatting, and oodles of errors of omission as well as commission. Earl Moore, the big right-hander whom Larry Lajole turned over to the Highlanders Saturday, worked on the rise for the visitors. Moore was hit rather lively in the early innings, particularly the fourth. In the eighth the Highlanders made a mess of mistakes and the Browns registered two runs.

Pickering reported ready for business yesterday morning and McAleer sent Delehanty to the clubhouse and ordered "Slidin' Slick" to again dance about the right field. Pickering liked the manner in which Earl dished them over all afternoon. He cleaned up three corking drives during the session. He tripled against the right wall in the fifth, but died there when Wallace and Stone fell by the wayside on easy chances.

Niles Going Fast.

The second-base play of Niles was quite the opposite to the Wallace-Yeager exhibitions. Niles now appears to be right at home on sack two and rarely an afternoon passes but he hands out at least one thrilling stop. Yesterday he set the enthusiasts frantic when he chased back of second, bounded high into the air and pulled down a hard liner from Keeler's stick. He recovered in time to double Hoffman off second base.

For Morning Work.

Manager Jimmy is, of course, much disappointed over the failure of his infielders to support his pitchers properly. The entire band were ordered out to the park this morning and McAleer lined Wallace, Yeager, Niles and Jones up and sent them through two hours of hard practice. The teams will meet again today in the third of the series. Griffith announced this morning that he most likely would work his big "spitz" ball twirler, Al Orth, this afternoon. McAleer figures that Harry Howell, who is right on edge just now, will be able to hold the Elberfeld-Chase aggregation in hand.

Sore at Umpires.

The Cardinals, so dispatches from New York this morning state, enjoyed a well-earned rest yesterday in the big city. Manager McCloskey is up in arms against the manner in which the umpires on the Eastern circuit are handling his club. Mack got the worst of the breaks in Brooklyn and in New York so far. As President Pulliam's office is close to where the Cardinals are stopping, the chances are McCloskey has already lodged his several complaints with the big mogul of the league.

Elberfeld Returns.

Shorty Elberfeld was forced to retire from the game in the sixth inning because of a twisted ankle. The wonderful St. Louis lad, however, will no doubt appear in harness again today. Elberfeld says he has a couple of entirely new plays which he is anxious to introduce to the public before his club departs. Shorty is already credited with being the originator of the standing steal, as well as the double-squeeze play.

Beckley's Hitting.

That reliable old ice wagon, Jake Beckley, is now the Cardinals' leading stickman. Jake has played 17 games and is batting at a .286 clip. Beckley's fielding, as usual, is high-class. He has made but one error since the season opened.

Hitting Above Galt.

Capt. Holly and Bobby Byrne are another pair of Cardinals whose slugging has been away above the average. Holly shows up today with a .274 mark and Byrne is close up with figures of .260.

Aged Battery Winning.

Cy Young and Louis Criger, that venerable battery which once capered about the field here, continues to win regularly, despite the fact that the club is playing poor ball. Yesterday Sir Denton held the world's champions down to six scattered hits, not allowing a run to count against him.

Detroit Loses Place.

Larry Lajole's Cleveland Blues have nosed Detroit out of second position in the American scramble. The Blues, who are at home, have been going great guns for the past ten days.

WOULD HAVE OARSMEN COMPETE IN EAST

John Schaab, who is president of the Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association, as well as a member of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, has been campaigning among the local oarsmen for the past week trying to stir them up to get together and visit Philadelphia and the Jamestown Exposition next August, when the national and international regattas will be held. Mr. Schaab announces that so far he has assurances from nearly all the leading local oarsmen that they will attend the big Eastern events and compete. The members of the Western, Century and Mound City clubs, who are now in training for the annual regatta of the Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association, which takes place at Creve Coeur Lake on July 20 and 21, will propose

WITHIN THREE GAMES OF WORLD'S RECORD

IF THE Giants continue to play the fine article of baseball during the next few days that they have handed the fans during the present season, their chances for equaling, if not surpassing, the National League record for straight victories, seem very bright. Today McGraw's men will play St. Louis another game. Then come the Chicago men for a series of three games.

The Major League record of consecutive victories is 20, made by the champion Providence team of the National League in 1884, and it has stood unequaled for 23 years. Twice the record was threatened, but each time the attempt fell short two games. Baltimore won 18 straight in 1894, and the Giants won the same number in succession in 1904.

In the American League the record is 19 straight victories, scored last season by the Chicago White Sox. Beginning Aug. 2, they won 19 game sfrom the Eastern teams, beating Boston six games, New York seven, the Athletics five and Washington one.

TWO TEAMS KEEP STANDINGS CLEAN

Orphan Boys and North Ends Win Again in the City League.

The three games played in the City League yesterday were above the average "semipro" or amateur games ordinarily seen on St. Louis diamonds. Two of the games were shut-outs, 2-0 and 3-0, while the third was 5-4. All three of the games were marked by the time of the games, all of them being played under two hours.

The two leaders, Orphan Boys and North Ends, both won their games by shut-outs.

In the Globes-Orphan Boys' game Bieger was invincible and while the Globes had the better of the hits, the perfect support of the Orphan Boys saved the day. Feeney pitches an almost faultless game, but a slow out to Hollweg cost him a home run. This, with a bad throw to first, lost the game for the Globes. The fielding honors were carried off by Sebastian, who made a sensational running catch from deep center to left.

In the North End-Nadja game, Fisher's fielding was the feature of the game. While he had but two assists, they were of the sensational order and he supported at critical times won the game. Dowling's two-base hits were timely and counted runs. Hardin and Fischer were both good on strikes, the former striking out seven, while the latter retired six. Umpire Kelly was almost put out of the game by a hot one from Rogers' bat, but recovered and finished the game.

The game at South End Park was perhaps the most exciting game of the three. The score was 5-4 and was in doubt until the end of the game.

The hitting was lively and in the ninth inning the Washingtons had a rally that almost won the game. Traber and Meyer each had three safe hits while Miller was credited with a three-bagger. Meyer and Wilcox also scored two-base hits. The game was a well-earned victory for St. Leos and demonstrated that the Washingtons will be a factor in the league race, even though they now stand at the bottom.

Four closely contested games were played in the Missouri-Illinois League yesterday. Probably the most important exhibition was the meeting in East St. Louis between the White Seals and Ziegenheins. The Seals and East Siders are being touted as the probable winners of the flag in the Cahill organization this season. The Ziegenheins played rather a lose fielding game and as a result both Herr and Barry, who worked for them had their troubles at times. Billy Sudhoff and Nellis did the flinging for the victorious Seals. The band won the game in the second when Barrett pulled off a double-squeeze play.

Ben Miller's natty little club entertained Belleville at Kulage's Park yesterday and won out 5—4. Erman, Fisher and Kavanaugh played the best ball for the winners. The Grand Leaders suffered their third straight defeat of the season, being defeated by the Reppies, 5—2.

The Alta Sitas met Gillespie yesterday and won their third straight victory.

TO DIG MINE FOR A BASEBALL PENNANT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 20.—The Webb City baseball park, used by the Western Association, is to be developed as mining property. The tract is quite large and a drill hole recently sunk in one corner showed a big deposit of ore at a depth of 180 feet. An arrangement has been made for the development of the land by lessees, and work is to begin at once on the sinking of a shaft. The management of the park is confident that the ore product of the ground will pay any possible deficit in the earnings of the baseball team, and it is proposed to use the funds so secured in securing for Webb City a pennant-winning aggregation next year, if the mine cannot be developed in time to do

FORSHAW MAKES UP HALF HOUR IN TRIAL

In yesterday's practice run over the Freeburg Marathon course, Joe Forshaw proved that he still retains all his speed and, incidentally, that he will be a hard man to beat when the big race itself is decided. There were 11 men in yesterday's run, and Forshaw gave them an advantage of 10 minutes, and then beat them home by 20 minutes.

At Edgemont, the starting point, and at several other places along the road there were large crowds, who watched and cheered the men. Before the pacemaker, Guest, had reached the eastern approach to the Ends Bridge, Forshaw had forged to the front and was in excellent condition when he jogged up to the M. A. C. Building.

The squad which ran yesterday and the order in which they finished was: Joe Forshaw, M. A. C.; H. W. Guest, unattached; Walter Zeitler and McRae Smith, both M. A. C. men; E. J. Murphy, South Side Y. M. C. A.; Will Campbell, West Side A. C., Belleville; W. Frauenfelder, unattached; J. J. Gleason, M. A. C.; E. B. Marschuetz, C. Y. M. C. A.; W. Wildberger, unattached; Clarence Kirby, Social T. V.; and George Haas, unattached. Several of the squad were unable to go over the course yesterday, but will be in good shape for next Sunday.

The men will then be taken over the course for the last time before the big race, June 1.

Next Sunday the squad will go to Freeburg, will work over the course to Edgemont, and then canter back to the city.

A large turnout is expected on the occasion.

Hebrew League in Opening of Season.

The Young Men's Hebrew League opened their season yesterday at Normandy Park in a double-header, in which the Bena-Els defeated the Y. M. H. A. by the score of 11 to 9. The United Hebrews defeated the Bena Amona by 8 to 5. The features of the game were the perfect fielding of Steyermark of the Bena Els and the batting of Goldberg, Steiner, Solomon and Rovics, each of whom made three-base hits. Games in this league will be played every Sunday.

LOOK OUT, GOTCH; WOMAN AFTER YOU

Miss Juno May, "Lady Champion Wrestler," Is Larger Than Jim Jeffries.

SHE WEIGHS 250 POUNDS

Another Chance for O'Brien to Keep Before Public in "Lemon" Business.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Miss Juno May, the English "lady champion wrestler," to quote from the headlines, would be a handful for any man. Miss Juno's measurements make Jeff's look like those of a gazelle. Miss Juno is 6 feet 2 inches without French heels. Jeff is only 6 feet 1¾ inches.

The "lady wrestler" has a 50-inch chest, 15½-inch neck, 12½-inch forearm, 33-inch waist, 14-inch upper arm and a 16-inch calf. Her weight is 250 pounds in wrestling trim. And she is a mere damsel of 22. What will she be when she grows up?

Antonio Pierri, her manager, who brought out Nouroulah, Youssoff, Hackenschmidt and a few other big wrestlers, says that the lady is pleasant and gentle when in repose, but when aroused can throw any wrestler in the world. She is strong, agile and well versed in the trickery of the game. Taken all in all, Miss May is a lady calculated to make any mere male hike for the tall timbers.

"Loaded Dice Pug."

"Mr. J. Hagan of Philadelphia," better known as "the loaded dice pugilist," has another chance to keep his name before the public. It is rumored that he is negotiating to form a corporation, with headquarters in Philadelphia. The full purpose of the corporation is not known at present, and it is said that the corporation will seek to corner the "lemon market" of the world. Those who have agreed to associate themselves with O'Brien in the enterprise are all familiar with the "lemon" producing business. O'Brien, besides being president of the corporation, will also control a majority of the stock. The other directors are Joe Gans of Baltimore, Jack Root of Chicago and Tommy Ryan of the peach orchard, Benton, Mich."

The above is clipped from a Denver paper.

One of the less important details was left out. The literature of the corporation will be written by Mr. O'Brien himself, under direction of his "tutor," Mr. O'Brien can now take dictation rapidly on his typewriter.

Manners Are Improved.

While mentioning Jack O'Brien I wish to set Philadelphia Jack right before a critical public. He has been blamed enough for the few slips he has made while engaging in "commercial propositions." It is not a fact, as a correspondent states, that Mr. O'Brien eats dith his knife. That is a crude habit that he abandoned years ago. Jack has become far too cultured to do anything like that, and then—suppose he should instinctively double cross himself and cut his throat.

Now Tommy Ryan is talking about fighting Jack O'Brien, and placing the middleweight title on the result.

Another "commercial proposition," I suppose. If Jack didn't sell out Tommy would.

This would be a case of frenzied finance. Both Tommy and Jack have bundles of money. The bidding for the honor of standing up while the other man laid down in the ring ought to be quite spirited. But I think O'Brien's gameness would win. He would outbid Tommy and win the fight by a sack of dollars. He would hand Jeffries $80,000, or the heavyweight title. The middleweight ought to be worth a small pot. Then, perhaps they would double cross each other simultaneously.

Taken all around, it would be a very interesting occasion. But picking a winner would be more difficult than beating the races.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer which does not always excite suspicion because of its insignificance; but as the poison becomes more firmly rooted in the blood, the mouth and throat ulcerate, copper-colored spots appear, a rash breaks out on the body, the hair begins to come out, glands in the neck and groins swell, and often ulcerating sores form on the limbs, hands or face. But this is not all: if the poison is allowed to remain it works down and attacks the bones, causing necrosis or decay, and makes a complete physical wreck of the sufferer. It will not do to tamper with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day the virus remains in the blood the trouble is progressing toward a more dangerous stage, and may in the end get beyond the reach of any treatment. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers. This remedy attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the blood and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, strengthens the different parts of the body, tones up the system and cures this humiliating and destructive disorder permanently. The improvement commences as so on as the patient gets under the influence of S. S. S. and continues until every vestige of the poison is driven from the blood, and the sufferer completely restored to health. S. S. S. is not an experiment, it is a success and has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison in every stage, and being entirely free from minerals, is a safe as well as certain treatment. If you are suffering with this debasing disease get the poison out of your blood with S. S. S. before it does further damage. Johnny Summers, English Fighter, and Tommy Murphy, In Main Event.

ONE OF THE BIG BOUTS

Another Philadelphia Club Opens Tonight With Five Events on the Card.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—The National Athletic Club has one of the biggest bouts of the year arranged for Wednesday, when Johnny Summers of England will make his first appearance in this country against Tommy Murphy, of New York. Summers lost the featherweight championship recently to Spike Robson on a foul and Murphy has three times faced Robson, winning one bout, losing another and getting a draw in the third. Murphy has steadily improved of late, and as Summers is given a slightly higher rating than Robson their bout should be of great interest.

The National Athletic Club also will have Harry Baker of San Francisco and Tommy O'Toole of this city for the wind up next Saturday if the pair can agree on the weight question.

The Washington Sporting Club will reopen tonight with five bouts between New York and Philadelphia boxers, as follows:

Unk Russell and Amby McGarry, Kid Beebe vs. Frankie Paul, Frankie Moore vs. Jimmy Moran, Joe Ryan vs. Jack Nelson and "Reddy" Moore vs. "Babe" Cullen.

There will also be boxing at other clubs on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, while on Friday three clubs will clash, including a new one organized in West Philadelphia.

AMATEUR OARSMEN HOLD FIRST MEET

The Mound City Rowing Club held its initial meet of the season on the Mississippi yesterday and the several events were all closely contested. One of the largest attendances in the history of the club openings on the river viewed the races. Five races were pulled off. Harry Floerke, who won the junior scull championship at Creve Coeur Lake, and the Mound City senior four, which has won every race for four-oar shells for the past several years, went down to defeat. Joe Lepping defeated Floerke only after a desperate struggle. The star senior four of the club, with Floerke on deck, lost out to the youngsters of the organization, after a spirited slash all the way down the course.

MONOPOLY AND LAW.

The Circuit Attorney cannot avoid proceedings against the Laclede Gas Light Co., if he intends to make his attack on the monopoly of light and power service by the North American Co. sweeping and effective. The Laclede Gas Light Co. controls all the gas franchises and plants in this city. It also manufactures and sells electricity, apparently in competition with the Union Electric Light and Power Co., but both are controlled by the same holding company—the North American Co.

The necessity of the act empowering municipalities to regulate the charges of public utilities corporations, recently passed by the State Legislature, is emphasized by the disclosures upon which the ouster suit against the Union Electric Light and Power Co. is based. Each of the companies merged under the control of the North American Co. was a monopoly in a measure, before consolidation, because of its franchise privileges and the division of territory between the independent companies. But there was some competition and always the possibility of more competition. The gas and electric light companies fought for business. But all possibility of competition was abolished by the merging of the independent monopolies into one huge monopoly. No matter what sort of light or power is purchased by the consumer, the money goes into the same treasury. The charges are fixed without regard to competition, but solely on the basis of all that the traffic will bear. The largest profit, not the largest volume of profitable business, is the determining factor in the question of price. The poorest service at the highest price which the consumer will stand is the rule of monopoly.

That franchises granted for public service should become the instruments of monopoly greed and oppression is contrary to justice and public policy. That they should be merged into a monopoly of monopolies in aggravated violation of law is intolerable. Two things must be done for the protection of the people of St. Louis—the anti-trust law must be enforced against the foreign monopoly which has stifled all competition, and the charges must be regulated on the basis of a fair return for the service. We have plenty of law. What we need is the beneficial operation o law.

The Lemp case proves that the law against carrying concealed weapons does not refer to men of wealth and influence and the Farris case indicates that the police waste basket is the receptacle for reports concerning the arrest of high State officials who go on a rampage.

EDISON'S NOTIONS.

Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, told a Sunday Post-Dispatch reporter that every man should have a hobby. Mr. Edison's hobby is work, and he rides it all day and half the night. He goes to bed at midnight, rises at 5:30 and works all the remainder of the time except the few minutes required to take the smallest possible quantity of nourishment. Mr. Edison has interesting ideas. He thinks sleep is an hereditary bad habit, too much indulgence in which dulls the intellect and saps energy. His interview may be summarized thus:

For vacation, change your environment.
For rest, change your work.
Sleep as little as possible—not more than five hours and a half.
Eat enough to keep up steam.
Keep your machinery going at top speed all the time you are not eating and sleeping.
Panacea for all human ills—more work.

There has been a decrease in St. Louis fire losses. Just a little more care would insure a great decrease.

SOLVING "PROBLEMS."

Prof. Goldwin Smith is one of those able and helpful men who come in every generation with an overwhelming impulse to start at the beginning and discover everything over again from the beginning.

During his long and helpful life, chiefly devoted to this purpose, he has made one discovery after another of great importance, but he is now summing up all the greatest into a final word.

As it appears in a New York paper, this final word is radical. It goes to the roots of things. It is pivotal. Everything turns on it.

"I fully admit," he says, "that society can be regulated by law framed for mutual protection and the general well-being without the religious conscience or other support than temporal inter- [illegible] can what is there to withhold them doing it? What is the value of a clean breast?"

This sonorous English means, of course, that it usually "pays" not to be guilty of either fraud or force, with so many exceptions that the exceptions may "pay" also, in spite of the rule.

What then? After rediscovering everything the world has learned by its worst experiences, as well as by its best, Prof. Smith's final discovery is that what really counts is not what a man has but what he is.

So, when one of the world's ablest intellects puzzles out all its "problems" over again, it comes at last to a principle that was written on the bricks we are now digging up from the ruins of Babylon.

If the infant class in Babylon was taught this same thing, 5000 years ago, it would be a saving of the energy of our greatest minds to begin problem solving with the Babylonian brick and the announcement that the only thing left to inaugurate the world's highest possible civilization is to begin the general practice of what even barbarism discovers to be the elements of common decency.

The reinstatement of Prof. John L. Sullivan's nephew in the Marine Corps is not only an evidence of the President's kindness of heart, but it is a striking tribute to athletics.

MANDATORY VOTING.

With the Mayor's signature affixed to the "mandatory" police appropriation bill of $1,800,000, it goes into effect as a St. Louis city ordinance under the same statute which provides imprisonment as a penalty for scrutinizing its various items and refusing to support and accept them as a whole.

The objection that painters and physicians are carried on the police payrolls, made last week in the House of Delegates, may have no special significance, except as it shows that members of the House of Delegates did scrutinize the bill to some extent before voting for it, while two of them did actually vote against it after this more or less imperfect scrutiny.

Whether or not painters and physicians are necessarily carried on police payrolls, as may be imagined as possible, the two delegates who voted against the bill are now subject to the penalties of the statute for doing so. Their action is a matter of public record. They have invited arrest.

There ought to be no evasion of such an issue. The statute which threatens them thus is probably the most outrageous denial of every principle of American institutions on any statute book in the United States. No quarter should be asked under it while it has supporters and no quarter can be given politically to its supporters, if local self-government is to be perpetuated in Missouri.

Now that the noble red man, Has-no-Shirt, is drawing money from the Government, we may soon see him in purple and fine linen.

PRISON REFORM.

Michigan recently adopted an amendment to the State Constitution, removing the prohibition against the teaching of mechanical trades in the State prison. In this vote Michigan people have done the least that ought to be done towards prison reform. Public opinion has advanced far beyond the old, inhuman policy of treating men convicted of crime as if they were irredeemable public enemies, to be regarded during their lives as social outcasts. The humane tendency now is to avoid, if possible, placing the permanent brand of criminal on men and women, especially those of youthful age. Juvenile courts have entirely reversed the old theory that the commission of one act of crime is an irreparable mistake. The new view which regards the age, circumstances, environment, as influential factors in determining the mode and extent of punishment, and which endeavors to work reform in the criminal, is accomplishing in practical application some remarkable results.

But there remains a large field for judicious reform. The police still have a habit of trailing ex-convicts and of subjecting them—regardless of their conduct—to arrest and embarrassment. Complaints from men who have once been inside of a prison that they are not permitted to work in peace and to rehabilitate themselves in society, are still frequent, despite the many instances of complete reformation when opportunity occurs. The pathetic case of William January, the escaped convict, who, under the name of Charles Anderson, at Kansas City, lived an exemplary life for nine years, built up a prosperous business and gained the good opinion of his acquaintances, shows how thoroughly reformation may be worked in a man who is given the opportunity.

One reform ought to be instituted in all the states. Convicts should not only be permitted to learn trades and to work at their trades, but part of their wages should be set aside for them, or, in the case of married convicts, turned over to their families. The practice of this State and many other states of depriving convicts of all the benefits of their labor, is inhuman and unwise. When they have families, the wives and children are condemned to extreme hardships which promote crime, vice and pauperism. The convicts are turned out at the end of their terms without any means except enough to return to their homes. If they cannot find employment immediately, usually a difficult matter for an ex-convict, they must beg or steal. There is no reason nor justice in this policy and it ought to be changed.

GERMANS IN THE UNITED STATES.

According to conservative estimates, the United States contains 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 inhabitants of German blood. The census of 1900 gives 2,666,900 as born in Germany and over 7,500,000 whose parents

PROTEST.

There are some souls too great
With love of boundless space
To languish here, but contemplate
Some more idyllic place,
Where there are stretching fields, and hills
The picture where the sun goes down
The uplift of the sturdy hills—
Some spirits that are cramped in town.

There are some eyes that tire
Of endless brick and stone,
And in their heavy depths a fire
Is burning for their own
Loved scenes, where there are winding roads
Around the hills, and falls
A clear stream on the cool geodes—
Some eyes that tire of frowning walls.

There are some ears attuned
To other sounds than these—
To music such as winds have crooned
Through clustered cedar trees,
And such droll crowing as the cocks
Rehearse at break of day,
And the deep-bellied hound that runs the fox—
Some ears that weary of Broadway.

If monuments are to mark the principal points of the old World's Fair grounds, an iron dog would be appropriate for the site of the Igorrote village.

RETRIBUTION.

Dark days for Standard Oil, but heydays for lawyers. It takes shrewd legal talent and heavy batteries of it to look after a Standard Oil official in these troublous times, and lawyers of this sort are not bashful about prices. Nor is there any reason why they should be. They have the only combination ever devised for squeezing the squeezer, and the more they make him resemble a duflated lemon, the more joy of mere looking-on.

The most heartless enemy of the Standard evaders of law and amassers of tainted millions could not have wished them any crueler fate than that they should fall into the hands of an enterprising and unsentimental bar. They have left us to look out for ourselves upon falling into their hands; now let them look our for themselves upon falling into the hands of the lawyers. They have long disclaimed the brotherly relation; now let them, with cold sweat opening their pores, do business with a people who disclaim it more vehemently than they.

THE OLD STEAMBOAT MAN.

A River Sketch Written for the Post-Dispatch.

By Clark McAdams.

"NO, SIR," said the Old Steamboatman, "the stage o' water didn't matter none when there war more business than boats. I recollect when the pilots war gettin' $5000 cool for puttin' a boat to the bank at Fort Benton. The Missoury in them times might a been high, low, jack or the game—nobody cared a wheel-turn which. The boats nosed in here for passengers an' freight, wheezed out into midstream, an' went strainin' an' splashin' off up the river without givin' a link o' hogchain what kind o' water was under the hull s'long as there was a brave brand o' booze behin' the bar.

"Pilots! Bless you, we don't see no fancy steamboat steerin' these days. I recollect when Jim Beaver an' Benton Charlie had a wheel match for $10,000 a side right here in the harbor. Jim's friends thought he could come closer to a sawyer without hittin' it than any man in the world, an' Benton had admirers as thought dissimilar in respectable sums. Jim held the match three weeks waitin' on the Reindeer to come off the ways. She war his favorite boat. He used to say the Reindeer could smell a sawyer half a mile, an' he knowed one war right ahead when the boat begin to edge off. Well, the Reindeer come up to the wharf, an' the town turned out to see the match. Benton picked out the Sioux City, another stern-wheeler, an' they anchored a wharfboat o' the ol' Missoury River Packet Co. out in midstream for target. There war three judges, an' the judges an' anybody with more'n $3000 at stake war permitted on the wharfboat.

"The terms o' the match war three tri'ls each. Jim took the first. He run up about three-quarters o' a mile, swung roun', and swept down the harbor with the Reindeer kickin' water higher'n Pompey's Pillar. There was a panic among the judges an' bettors when Jim rushed down on the wharfboat, but he never teched her. The Reindeer wheeled water knee deep on the wharfboat when she went by, and when the record 8 INCHES war put up, there war a whoop on shore. But Benton beat it. The Sioux City done 6, an' the crowd said she was goin' faster. That made Jim sort o' mad-like. The Reindeer put up some mighty black smoke workin' back to the startin' point, an' when she came down the secon' time she was movin' some lively. Jim did 4 inches that time, which seemed to make Benton some uneasy on his wheel next time down, an' he hit the wharfboat a whack that started the oakum out o' her seams. A bad cross current caught Jim's third time down, an' he went wide by 5 feet. Benton hung around till Jim put about. 'Jim,' he shouts from his pilot house, 'I've been foolin' with ye.' 'Yer plum nervous,' says Jim. 'Ye'l sink the wharfboat this time.' 'Jim,' says Benton, all of us hearin' it, 'bet ye 'nuther five thousand I kin pull yer boot off.' 'Take ye,' says Jim, all of us on the wharfboat bein' witness.

"Do it? He did, sir. The Sioux City swept down on us with the onholiest roarin' I ever heard. 'Hev ye the sand, Jim?' cried Benton, climbin' the wheel like a monkey an' drivin' her in close where Jim war hangin' one foot over the rail with two o' us holdin' him. 'Got 'nuther five thousan' dollars worth o' it,' shouted Jim. 'Take ye,' cried Benton, all o' us witness again. Jes then the Sioux City flashed past. I was holdin' Jim on the lower side. Sudden-like he pulled like a fish, the Sioux City threw steam an' water on us, an' Jim fell back a-top o' us cussin' like mad an' wavin' one sock foot. 'T'ell with the twenty thousand,' shouted Jim, hoppin' mad. 'I've got to wear common footwear till I can duplicate that boot from Paris.'"

THE SIZE OF THE MOLECULE.

By the Post-Dispatch Scientist.

LORD KELVIN states that if a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth its molecules would appear as large as tennis balls. Clerk Maxwell states that in one cubic centimeter of gas under ordinary conditions there are 19,000,000,000,000,000,000 molecules and that if these could escape at the rate of 70,000,000 per second it would be 140,000 years before the last one escaped.

"ALL IN THE AIR."

AERONAUTS of the heavier-than-air school are in an optimistic frame of mind. Ignoring the alleged flights of the Wright brothers, three French aeroplanists, with widely differing types of machines, have made public flights of sufficient length to far remove them from the running jumps which certain critics maintained was all that had ever been accomplished or could be accomplished by the aeroplane.

It is true, writes the Paris correspondent of Automobile, that the flights have not been of great length—Santos-Dumont holds the record with 240 yards— but it must be remembered that we are working in an entirely new field, and that frequently a machine is brought back to earth not because of its inability to remain longer in the air, but because its pilot hesitates to push his experiments to the danger limit.

READE AND TERRY

How the Author-Manager Kept the Actress From Leaving the Stage at Twenty-Six.

From the Manchester Guardian.

ELLEN TERRY, at the age of 20, resolved to leave the stage, and went and stayed 4½ years in the country. How she came back to it is told in "Ellen Terry," by Christopher St. John just published.

Charles Reade, when hunting in Hertfordshire, met her by chance in a country lane and told her in his rough yet kindly way that she was a fool to have left the stage.

"Why don't you go back?"

"I don't want to."

"You will some day."

"Never!" Then, mindful of certain financial troubles threatening her rural peace, Ellen Terry added: "At least, not until someone gives me £40 a week."

"Done!" said Charles Reade; "I will."

The part Miss Terry played for Reade was Philippa Chester in "The Wandering Heir." At the end of the run of this piece she did not leave his management, but went on tour in several of his plays. The tour was financially disastrous, but a suggestion from Ellen Terry that her parts did not carry her salary, and that she had better leave, as anyone could play these parts equally well, was received with the greatest indignation by the fiery author-manager.

"Madame, you are a rat! Don't imagine it is generous to desert the sinking ship," expressed his view of the situation.

An old lady who lived with Miss Terry at this time, and was her inseparable companion, remonstrated with Reade for his harsh language to her "Nelly." "I love her better than you do, or any puling woman," Reade answered.

Present Opportunities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Inventions and Blessings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The different inventions and discoveries, so called blessing for humanity, are not altogether blessing after all. If we look into the near future and see that even the discovery of the Altoona (Pa.) cobbler to burn ashes with little or no expense will prove in due time a destroying element in the commercial and labor world, affecting mine operators, miners, stove manufacturers and many others. From an optimistic point of view I like to see new methods discovered. But are such methods always best for the public?

Campaign Funds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In your editorial opposing the expenditure of money in presidential campaigns, as favored by Secretary Root, you make some very good points. While the honorable secretary admits the "abuses in raising and applying campaign funds," he does favor a "useful expenditure of money" for political purposes. In view of Mr. Root's advice, permit me to quote the figures published by the Farm, Stock and Home of Minneapolis, Minn. That paper states that the Republican party managers spent $16,500,000 in 1896; the Democrats $675,000. In 1900 the Republicans $9,500,000, the Democrats $425,000. In 1904, the Republicans $3,500,000, the Democrats $1,250,000. Beginning with 1860 the Republican finance committee spent $36,675,000, the Democrats $8,435,000. Was all this a "useful expenditure?"

Sentenced for Life.

By the kindness of the Post-Dispatch I am enabled to speak to the fathers, mothers, teachers and guardians: Will we dare, tonight before retiring, lift up our hearts and pray that blessing come to our own children while we allow a mere infant—a fatherless boy of 15, bad though he be—to be sentenced to the State Penitentiary for life? This shocking occurrence plainly points to the fact that more attention must be paid to the character building of the young, the fatherless, the homeless and neglected. Some young trees need special care, propping and so on. Just so this young soul needs the care which his widowed mother is unable to bestow upon him. I, for one, insist that one so young must be given the opportunity to learn to distinguish between wrong and right, followed by a chance to live a better life.

A MOTHER.

World's Fair Landmarks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Would it not be a good idea for the World's Fair Co. to place a tablet or other marker on the site of the main buildings of the late World's Fair for the revival of pleasant memories of present generations and the instruction and wonderment of the million that's coming. HOPE SO.

Consumptives and Diagnosis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

That the most learned men are not infallible in their opinions is proved every day. Some years ago, I was condemned by three physicians as a white plague victim, when a friend of mine called an old French doctor. After an examination he shook his head, very low he said: "She may die at any moment. Nevertheless I will try to help her." That day he prescribed for me, medicine to be taken in four hours, telling my friends not to let me sleep at any cost until the medicines had taken effect. I suffered in agony till 4 p. m. My relatives thought surely I would die. After 4 o'clock a change for the better succeeded the awful pains. At his evening visit the doctor was satisfied with the result of his prescription. The diagnosis of the three physicians who declared me a consumptive was wrong, and yet, if I had been under the care of such a doctor as the German Knofft, I would have had entered eternal rest 15 years ago. The Oleo Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The oleomargerine law is troubling the Retail Grocers' Association. Evidently the peddlers of the "Oleo Butter" are making unusual inroads on their trade, if they had advocated obedience to the law they need not be crying against it now. When those peddlers of "Oleomargerine Creamery" sell it as butter to grocers' customers, with the additional information that their grocer charges more for the same it hurts. Our State has framed a good law covering the situation, which if the Grocers' Association would aid in enforcing, the imposition on them by unprincipled peddlers would soon end.

The Post-Dispatch Daily Story

THE PLAY'S THE THING

BY EMMETT CAMPBELL HALL.

Copyright, 1907, by Daily Story Publishing Co.

"THE public," John Kennedy of the Independent Theatrical Company, Limited, announced pompously to the newspaper men, "is growing tired of poor shows by people who have nothing but a reputation—gotten almost any old way. What they want is a good show, a good play, with good actors, and the name of the actor or actress doesn't have the value of a last year's door check."

It was in following out this plan, therefore, that Kennedy picked out Marshall Madden as his leading man for "The Cottage and the Studio," a simple little tale of struggle and heartache, of strength and the performance of hard duty.

"But say, I don't know a thing about this artistic atmosphere of Paris, and all that, you know," Madden objected when his selection was announced to him. His strong point was "atmosphere" and "local color," and he had been playing for years in dramas of the West. "I have been fooling with guns and spurs so long," he continued, "that I am pretty near a real cow-puncher. Hot art student I'll make."

"That's all right," Kennedy said, soothingly. "You'll make good, all right. As to the atmosphere, I'm going to have you run over to Paris and acquire it. You'll start at once, and when you get there, you fix up a studio and join some class—just live the thing, you know."

"All right," Madden agreed. "How about the leading lady? She is supposed to be art art student also, you know."

"Haven't decided on one just yet, though I have one in mind," Kennedy replied.

The result of all of which was that some four weeks later Marshall Madden was established, humbly, as befitted his purse and the part he was to play in the next winter's production, as a full-fledged art student in Paris, under the name of Weldon Hampton.

It was just a month after his arrival in Paris that Madden met Elsie Proctor, at a little students' gathering, and from that instant the days to Madden were golden.

In the frank, easy airs of the studios they soon became far more intimate in a short time than would have been the case under any other circumstances, but at all times there was about the girl a certain shy reserve that checked too rapid an advance. To Madden she appeared as the one girl of his life, and she was evidently not indifferent to the big, handsome chap, though she could not resist the temptation to tease.

That was one of her most charming traits, although at times it drove him to the brink of despair.

By and by she grew more gentle, and confided to him some of the details of her life—how, as a child in her poor, cramped and bare New England home she had longed for some of the beautiful things of life; how in that hard soil her artistic talent had struggled toward blossom, and how at last she had succeeded in obtaining a position in New York which enabled her by the closest economy to finally come to Paris and take the course for which she had longed. It would have to be short, however, she told him; she would have to go home early in the coming fall, to again secure her position. A widowed mother and two smaller children required her support.

"Why, that might have been Jessie's story!" he exclaimed aloud.

"Then she has my sympathy, though I do not know her," Elsie said. "Who is she?"

"Oh, just a character in a play," he said.

"And 'the play's the thing,' isn't it?" she murmured, her eyes fixed upon a distant point.

As the time for his return to New York drew nearer, Madden pressed his suit with more and more ardour, only to be kept gently at a safe distance.

At last the night before the day on which he was to leave arrived. He had called to see her, and found her with suspiciously bright eyes. Her handkerchief was crumpled into a little damp ball in her hand, and her slender form drooped wearily.

Madden seated himself upon the couch beside her, and took her hands in his.

"I am going tomorrow, dear," he whispered. "Will you not say you care a little for me—that you might, some day?"

"I—I do care, Weldon," the girl said, slowly; "care more than I have let you see. But you—is it real to you?"

It was his cue in the last act of "The Cottage and the Studio" that she had unknowingly spoken, but in the stress of his emotion he did not notice it. Unconsciously, however, he took it up.

"Is it real?" How can you ask that, sweetheart?" he cried, and pressed the hand he held to his lips. "Can't you see, feel, how great is my love for you, how great my need? Oh, sweetheart, I love you, love you! Will you not marry me, darling?"

His arms were about her, and he drew her gently toward him.

"If I could but know—only know"—she whispered, and they were the lines that "Jessie" should speak.

"Prove me as you will, my darling," he urged, and tried to draw her closer, but the girl wrenched herself free and sprang to her feet.

There is no need to prove you further; you are a good actor," she said, bitterly.

For a moment he gazed at her uncomprehendingly, then the truth burst upon him that he had been going through the scene, word for word, of the parting in "The Cottage and the Studio."

"But how—how did you—" he began, bewildered, but the girl walked to the other end of the room.

"Please go away," she said, coldly, and he rose unsteadily to his feet, "I hope your rehearsal has been of benefit," she added, mockingly, as, with downcast eyes he stumbled from her presence.

Upon his arrival in New York he found a call for a meeting of the new company, to take place in a week. He threw the sheet from him with a groan.

"I can't do it!" he cried, but the instinct of the actor was strong in Madden, and promptly at the hour named in the call he entered the theater.

Kennedy, coatless, hot and beaming seized upon him.

"Hello, old man!" he exclaimed joyously. "Come on and meet the bunch. Say, I've got the greatest ever, and no paper house in that, either. If we don't make 'em sit up—come on—here's our leading lady."

Madden turned and looked into the eyes of Elsie Proctor.

"Miss Bates, this is Mr. Marshall Madden—excuse me, please!" he said, and rushed away.

The girl held out her hand, and smiled.

"How are you, Mr. Hampton?" she said, and laughed an uncertain little laugh.

"You—you knew all the time?" he gasped. "Kennedy sent you to Paris, too—why, Oh, why didn't you tell me, girl?" She could not but see the pain in his eyes, and her own softened.

"It—did it matter, much?" she asked.

"No, not to you. But to me—it has taken all the gladness out of life for me. Of course I will resign my part in this company. I know what your feelings must be at the bare sight of me, but I despise myself much more than you can possibly," he said, slowly, and turned away.

She came nearer to him, and laid a hand gently upon his arm.

"Please don't," she said softly.

"You—you want me to stay?" he stammered, while a light of joy flamed in his eyes.

"Yes," she answered, so softly that he could hardly catch the words. "I think we could act that parting so well, on the stage, dearest."

HOW TO BUILD A NON-CAPSIZABLE BOAT.

(From Harper's Outdoor Book for Boys. Copyright, 1907, by Harper & Bros.)

"FOR safety on the water, as nearly as safety can be assured, there is nothing to compare with a catamaran, for they are absolutely 'noncapsizable,' and if not damaged to the leaking point one or the other of the two boats will float and hold up several persons. Fig. 1 gives a good idea for a rowing catamaran that any boy can make from some boards and light timbers.

"The boats are 14 feet long, 18 inches wide and 14 inches deep, including the bottom and deck.

"Pine, white-wood, cedar or cypress, three-quarters of an inch thick and planed on both sides, will be necessary from which to construct the boats. At the bow the ends of the sides are attached to a stern piece of hard wood as shown in Fig. 2. Having poured boiling water on the forward ends, they may be drawn around a spreader 16 inches long and 12 inches wide provided with U cuts, as shown in Fig. 3. These are placed at the bottom, so that any water may be run to one end of a boat, where it can be pumped out.

"The first spreader is placed three feet from the bow, and three or four of them can be fastened between the sides, as shown in Fig. 4, the last one being three feet from the stern, where the sides begin to curve up to the upper edge of the stern and to the deck.

"The bottom is of three-inch pine or white-wood boards seven-eighths of an inch thick and well leaded in the joints and along the edges where the bottom and top boards join the sides. Before the top or deck is placed on, the interior of the boats should have two or three good coats of paint.

"Three cross-stringers or spruce, two and one-half by 4 inches and six feet long, are securely attached to the boats, and on these the deck of four-inch boards is made fast, as the illustration will show. Between the middle and forward stringers, at the ends, two boards are attached, on which the row-locks may be fastened. These boards are eight or nine inches wide, and cut away at the front so that they are not more than two or three inches wide.

"The high ends are braced with round iron braces, as shown in the illustration, and where the oar-locks are mounted a short plate of wood is screwed fast to the inside of each piece.

"Near the front cross-piece a seat is built and braced with a board. With another boy at the stern sitting on the deck this catamaran will be well balanced, and will prove very seaworthy, as well as a light boat to row."

A RUSSIAN PASTIME.

From Health Culture.

IF the human jaws need some occupation in the intervals of meals and gossip, masticators could learn a lesson from the peasants of Southern Russia, who exercise their teeth on the hard seeds of the Caspian sunflower.

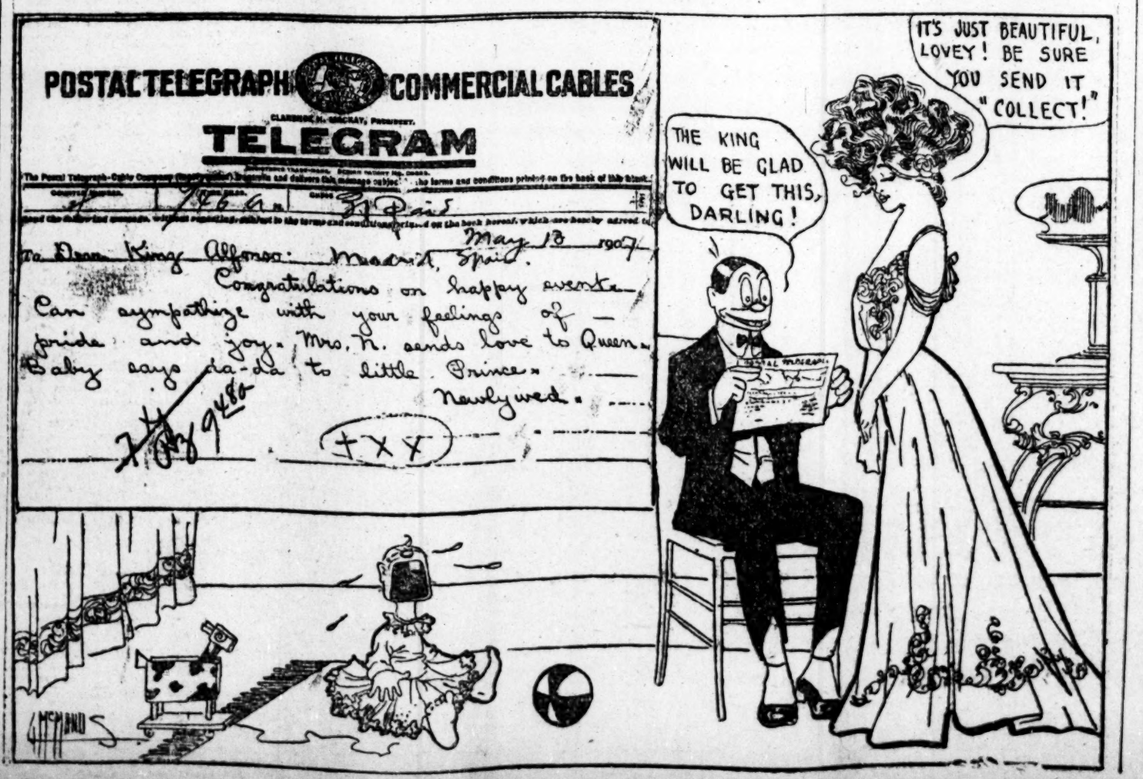

There is not a suspicion of a stimulant about it, no chewing gum dyspepsia or navy plug nuisance.

It is a pastime and incidentally an excellent dentifrice.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

THE BEST STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.

From The Housekeeper.

BREAK, and beat until very light, six eggs, reserving the whites of three. Add gradually two cupfuls of sugar, beating constantly. Hold high a cupful of boiling water, allowing it to fall into the mixture in drops, and in a thin stream. Measure and sift together two and one-half cupfuls of flour and two level tablespoonfuls of baking powder. Add gradually to the sugar, eggs and hot water. Beat stiffly the three whites of eggs, adding to them a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Stir into the cake. Pour into layer cake pans, to the depth of a quarter of an inch. Bake about ten minutes. Put berries into a dish, pouring over them as much sugar as desired. Spread between the layers of cake. Whip a small quantity of cream and spread evenly on the top layer, dotting with red berries.

Cocoa Macaroons.

PASS through a sieve together, one cup of sifted flour, half a cup of sugar, two level tablespoonfuls of cocoa, half a teaspoonful baking powder, quarter teaspoonful each of salt and cinnamon, and one-eighth teaspoonful each of cloves, mace and nutmeg. With these mix the grated rind of an orange and one-quarter cup of fine-chopped citron. Break one egg and the yolk or white of another into the mixture, add one teaspoonful extract of vanilla, and mix the whole to a stiff dough. With buttered hands roll the mixture into balls about the size of hickory nuts, dip one side in granulated sugar and set some distance apart in buttered pans, the sugared side up. Bake in a quick oven. The recipe makes 18 macaroons.

Corn Pone.

ONE cup of cornmeal, one cup of flour, one cup of sour milk, with a little soda, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of baking powder. Use the fine meal, not the granulated. Put sugar, flour, meal and butter together, put in the rest and beat hard. Bake in a bread tin about half an hour.

Banana Float.

TAKE a small box of gelatine and dissolve in one teacup of cold water one hour. Boil three pints of sweet milk and two and one-half cups of sugar together. Keep out a little of the boiled milk and stir into the gelatine, then stir this into the rest of the milk and boil ten minutes. When cool stir in six bananas that have been broken to pieces with a silver fork. Mix thoroughly and set on ice. The next day, one hour before serving, take a quart of rich cream, sweeten to taste, flavor with vanilla and whip it well. Put the frozen bananas into a glass dish or bowl with the whipped cream on top.

Hester's Muffin Bread.

TAKE half a cake of dry yeast, one teaspoonful of sugar beaten into it, then add this to a pint of milk which has been boiled and cooled, and in which a piece of butter the size of an egg has been melted. Stir all this into one quart of flour, then into that two well beaten eggs. Set to rise for six hours or a little more. Bake for fifteen or twenty minutes in a hot oven.

From the Denver Post.

"The use of a little common sense the night before, Willie."

From Harper's Weekly.

"Do you find it more economical to do your own cooking?"

"Yes, indeed. My husband doesn't eat half as much now as he did."

From The Sketch.

"What do you think of Stodger's last book?"

"Well, I thought it was the driest thing I ever read, but I managed to wade through it."

From Tit-Bits.

Ethel (to her friend in spectacles): And what is to be your profession, Mary?

Mary: Oh, I'm going to be a tragic poetess.

Ethel: But, my dear, that's not a profession. It's a disease.

"Three wrecks, one misplaced switch and a washout," answers the conductor, hastening on, lighting his red lantern as he goes.

Uncle Sam To Have a Derelict Destroyer!

Good News for the Ocean Traveler

The derelict, the chief peril of ocean travel, has got to go. Its Nemesis is to be created by Uncle Sam in the shape of a Derelict Destroyer, the building of which was authorized by the last Congress.

This Destroyer is to be stationed on the North Atlantic and to be furnished with powerful searchlights, wireless equipment, high explosives and fuel storage sufficient to enable her to travel 5000 miles.

If there are

Any Old Derelicts

endangering your path across the ocean of life, sink them out of sight!

Post-Dispatch Wants

and a few little lines of type will be so well aimed as to result in the effectual elimination of said derelict.

• • •

Any day will do for you, but—Sunday's best of all.

HAYWOOD'S JURY NEARLY COMPLETE

Box Probably Will Be Filled Without Recourse to an Additional Venire.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

BOISE, Idaho, May 20.—After a quiet Sunday intermission the trial of William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of former Gov. Frank Steunenberg, opens this morning for the eighth day of the jury getting.

According to the latest reports the prosecution will not exhaust any more of its challenges on the talesmen now in the box, and while the defense, with six peremptory challenges in reserve, may remove one or two more from the box as it at present stands, there is some prospect that the peremptory challenges on both sides are about over. If these reports are true there is a possibility of obtaining a jury without having recourse to a new venire.

Among the witnesses who arrived late last evening was Gen. Bulkeley Wells, who has been a picturesque figure connected with the stories of the difficulties of the Western Federation of Miners and the mine owners. Gen. Wells is now prominently connected with the mine owners' organization. He was in command of the train which brought Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone from Colorado to Idaho at the time they were arrested in Denver under extradition warrants. He will be one of the witnesses for the State when the case opens.

TWO ARE SAVED BY POLICEMEN

Egan Swung From Street Car to Catch Runaway Horse by the Bridle.

HIS UNIFORM IS RUINED

Woman and Child Boarded the Car and Left Without Leaving Their Names.

Policeman Patrick J. Egan of the Manchester Avenue Station saved a woman and a small child from possibly being run over and trampled by a runaway horse at Laclede and Grand avenues at 10:45 a. m. Monday, but they disappeared aboard a Laclede avenue car before he could ascertain their identity.

Egan was standing on the front platform of an eastbound Laclede avenue car. The runaway horse, attached to a May Company delivery wagon was racing west along the south side of the street. The woman and child were waiting in the street just east of the southeast corner of Grand and Laclede avenues for the car.

It looked to Egan as if the excited animal would meet the car just about the time the woman and child wished to get aboard. So he told the motorman not to stop. The car shot toward the runaway horse Egan took a position on the lower outside front step, and, as the runaway swung by, reached out and grasped the bridle. Egan was pulled from the car by the force of the contact and dragged about fifty feet, much to the damage of his uniform, but he brought the horse to a stop. This enabled the woman to reach the car, which had stopped after Egan swung off.

He went to the station, donned another pair of trousers and then reported for duty.

NECK BROKEN, SKULL FRACTURED, JAWBONE SHATTERED, MAN LIVES

Victim of Accident Who Should be Dead According to Science May Survive.

Science says that Carmel Filis ought to be dead, but he isn't. He is not only alive but conscious at the City Hospital despite the fact that his neck is broken, his skull is fractured at the base, his jaw bone is shattered, he has concussion of the brain and a deep scalp wound.

Filis is 27 years old and lives at 1821 South King's highway. He fell from a moving Laclede avenue car near Twelfth and Market streets at 5:30 p. m. Sunday. He saw a friend on the sidewalk and in hurrying to join him, lost his balance and plunged from the step of the car, alighting on his head.

When he was received at the City Hospital the physicians thought that he could live only a few hours. Now they believe that his life can be saved.

In ordinary cases either the fracture of the neck or that of the skull would have been sufficient to cause death.

THROTTLING OF OIL TRUST UP TO THE SUPREME COURT

Findings of Commissioner Anthony Will Go to the Highest State Tribunal.

The findings of Special Commissioner Anthony in Missouri's suit against the Standard, Republic, Waters-Pierce and International Oil companies will be presented to the State Supreme Court at Jefferson City next Thursday morning.

Attorneys are generally of the opinion that Mr. Anthony's opinion will be the judgment of the court.

Mr. Anthony said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that he had made a complete review of all the evidence taken in the proceedings instituted by Attorney-General Hadley to put the Standard Oil combination out of business in Missouri on the ground that it is throttling competition and operating in restraint of public policy. The testimony was begun nearly two years ago, but the Rockefeller attorneys managed to delay it.

"My report will embrace about 300 typewritten pages," said Mr. Anthony, "and, of course, this will include my findings.

"My findings are for the information and guidance of the court. The court, whose servant I am, may accept or reject them just as it sees fit."

AGED OFFICER'S VALOR BALKS JAIL DELIVERY

Carlinville Jailor Routs Prisoners But Is Badly Hurt.

CARLINVILLE, Ill., May 20.—An official investigation of the attempted jail delivery here late Saturday night, when John Jones, in charge of the Macoupin County Jail, was assaulted and seriously hurt, was begun Monday. Sheriff Robert Jones, son of the Jailer, claims that the attack upon his father was made by Lawrence Epps, 23 years old, of Girard, and Fred Washington, a negro lad of this city, both of whom are accused of minor forgery charges.

Under Sheriff Jones' direction the Jail was thoroughly searched Friday. Nothing was found which it was thought could be used as a weapon or tool by 12 prisoners. The Jailer locked the prisoners in their cells Saturday night and believed that Epps and Washington were in bed. They had made dummies of their blankets and were crouching on the other side of the inclosure of the cells.

Later the Jailer returned to see that all of the cells were securely fastened. Epps and Washington had plugged up a gas jet with paper. When the aged Jailer was trying to light the inclosure he was attacked. One of the pair struck him on the head with a faucet wrenched from a bathtub.

Jones is a veteran Union soldier and has a reputation for his valor. He fought his way back to the corridor door, beating off the young prisoners. After obtaining help he returned and they were locked up.

Jones' skull is said to be slighly fractured, but doctors believe that his condition is not critical.

Two of the prisoners in the Jail are Peter F. Clarke of Girard, who shot and killed Mrs. Ollie Hill Gibson on an Interurban car between Girard and Virden a short time ago, and William Shields of St. Louis, who killed Al Barker at Mount Olive 16 months ago.

SMITH BLAMES RAILROADS FOR STANDARD ABUSE

Federal Report Says Transportation Facilities Keep Up Monopoly,

LAW IS OPENLY DEFIED

Company Substantially Refuses, With Pipe Lines, to Be Common Carrier,

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Herbert Knox Smith, who succeeded James R. Garfield as Commissioner of Corporations, has submitted a report to President Roosevelt, in which he declares the Standard Oil Co., as shown by its history and present operations, has deliberately destroyed competition through the past 35 years. There is a monopolization of the petroleum industry of the country and a consequent control of that industry by less than a dozen men, who have reaped enormous profits therefrom, declares the report.

Other reports will follow. Certain information acquired is withheld for the present, in accordance with instructions of the President, who feels that their publication might interfere with the prosecution of the Government's suits pending against the Standard Oil Co. and its subsidiary companies. The report contains the net results of the study of the petroleum business during the year 1904.

First Official Statement.

It is the first official statement of the operations and methods of the Standard Oil Co. by which the report states "through scandalous railway discriminations" and other unlawful devices, they have obtained and maintained an "exclusive domination of the petroleum industry."

It is stated that in 1904 the Standard and affiliated concerns "refined over 84 per cent of the crude oil run through refineries; produced more than 86 per cent of the country total output of illuminating oil; and transported through pipe lines nearly nine-tenths of the crude oil of the older fields and 95 per cent of the crude oil of the mid-continent field."

The report points out the monopoly enjoyed by the company does not rest on the ownership of the source of the oil supply, which amounts to about only one-sixth of the total, but "that its growth and present power rests primarily on the control of the transportation facilities."

After the railroad rebate was abandoned, the company, the report continues, was able to "establish a system of secret, or open discriminations of rates in its favor throughout practically the entire country. Having established its monopoly of the pipe line business, the company substantially refuses to act as a common carrier."

Controls Retail Trade.

It is shown that the Standard controls not only the wholesale, but also the retail trade in oil.

In conclusion, the report says it is apparent that the dominating position of the Standard Oil Co. in the oil industry has largely been obtained by the abuse of transportation facilities, first by flagrant discriminations obtained from railroads; second by a refusal to operate its pipeline system so as to extend to independent interests the benefits to which they were both morally and legally entitled, while at the same time the Standard has prevented such independent interests from constructing lines of their own.

LITTLE GIRL'S STORY REOPENS MURDER CASE

"Blackie" Cook, Once Freed, May Be Reindicted on First Degree Charge.

A litte girl, said to have seen the cause a retrial of John R. Dunne, who cause a retrial or John R. Dunne, who was freed a few days ago by a dismissal of the charge of second degree murder, after Judge Muench had set aside a 12-year verdict against him.

Dunne was taken in custody Monday and conducted to Chief Creecy's office. Assistant Circuit Attorney Rosskopf refused to state details of the new evidence, which is in his possession, except that a child was the witness. The child did not appear at the first trial, the prosecution not having learned about her.

Dunne could not be tried again on a second-degree murder charge, but could be tried for first-degree murder.

Cook was killed Jan. 7 by a blow from a 2x4 timber in the rear of 5007 Easton avenue. Cook, who had been with him before the killing, was convicted on circumstantial evidence, which the Court held insufficient.

TIRED POLICEMAN WENT HOME

Charge of Being Absent From Post Made Against Kottenstette.

Policeman Ernest Kottenstette of the Angelica Street Station will be tried by the Police Board Friday on a charge of absenting himself from his beat for three hours without permission on the night of May 17. The charge was preferred by Sergt. James Moran, who says he was unable to find Kottenstette during the time mentioned.

Kottenstette was ordered to make out a report explaining his absence. He rereported as follows:

"I sat down on a bench at Penrose and Holly streets to rest at 8 p. m., and when I woke up I went home."

His superiors infer that he was tired and went to sleep and that when he woke it was after 11, his time for being relieved.

BOY AND DOG MISSING

Youth Has Often Gone Away With the Trusted Animal.

Roscoe Curry, 14 years old, of 3116 Alfred avenue, and his shepherd dog have been missing from home for a week. The police have been asked to look for them.

The parents of Roscoe were not worried when he walked away from home with his dog. He had done so frequently before, but when he failed to return at night they became alarmed and, after looking high and low for him, decided to enlist the services of the police.

NO SIGN OF BLOOD NEAR MAN'S BODY

FOUND NEAR RAILROAD

Doctor Found Fracture of Skull, Evidently Made by Blunt Instrument.

On the theory that Samuel H. Moore was murdered and thrown into a small triangle formed by a sidewalk and two railway switches at Granite City, Deputy Coroner Vorhees adjourned an inquest hearing Monday to make a full investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death.

The body was still warm when found at 10:29 p. m. Sunday by Gus Smith. One leg was thrown across a rail forming the triangle and an arm hung over another rail while the feet rested against the edge of the sidewalk. An examination of the body by Dr. W. B. Rose revealed a fracture of the skull as though a blunt instrument had inflicted a heavy bruise on the forehead just above the bridge of the nose.

The examining physician said that a good deal of blood must have flowed from the small wound, but no sign of blood was found where the body was discovered. The hat was also missing. A small amount of money in the pockets rather discounted the first suspicion of robbery.

Moore was a painter and a member of the painters' union of Granite City. The membership is interested in pushing the investigation and will prosecute any one who is charged with having killed Moore, who returned to Granite City a few weeks ago after an absence of three years. The mother of the dead man, Mrs. M. H. Moore, resides at Waltham, Mass.

ANNOYS VOLUNTEER GIRL WITH COARSE REMARKS

Considerate Man Rescues Bessie Perry From a River Waiter Who Followed Her.

Charges of disturbing the peace of Miss Bessie Perry, 1434 Franklin avenue, a solicitor for the Volunteers of America, were made Monday against James Ferguson, 47 years old, a waiter on a Government boat.

Miss Perry, who is 18 years old, went into a saloon at Sixth and Market streets to solicit alms. She claims that Murphy addressed insulting remarks to her, and grabbed her by the arm as she was going out. According to her story he then followed her into several other saloons, repeating his objectionable remarks.

D. J. Maness of 606 Market street, seeing that the girl was being annoyed, called Policeman Lane, who arrested Ferguson. He appeared to be very drunk when he was booked at the Four Courts and lodged in a cell in the holdover.

"RED HEAD'S" BROTHER CAUGHT

Edward Dawes Held While the Police Investigate.

Edward Dawes, aged 21, older brother of Harry Dawes, the "red-headed boy burglar," was arrested at Fourteenth and Poplar streets Monday, while carrying a sack filled with copper and brass fittings.

Dawes told Policeman Berberich that he picked up a box containing the articles, which had fallen from a wagon, and emptied it into the sack. The police decided to hold him until they can learn whether any articles of the sort have been missed by the Terminal Association or any of the railroad companies. He lives at 1623 South Thirteenth street. Harry Dawes was sent to the Reform School for two years last week.

NEW TEXAS LAW AIDS PIERCE

He Will Not Have to Stay in Jail If He Goes There.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 20.—It is reported that H. C. Pierce has advised his personal attorney, Judge J. D. Johnson of St. Louis, who is now in Austin, that he will come here direct from New York next week and voluntarily meet the charge of having made false affidavit in connection with the administration of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. to do business in Texas.

His coming is thought to be influenced to some extent by the recent act of the Legislature, now in effect, permitting defendants in criminal cases to remain free from custody when under bond, as well during trial as before. As the law stood prior to the passage of this act, if Mr. Pierce had come to Austin and his trial once begun, he would have been compelled to remain in Jail or in the custody of the Sheriff during the progress of the trial. Sheriff Matthews, who recently returned from St. Louis, where he made an attempt to take Mr. Pierce into custody, says there is every reason to believe that the report is correct. Mr. Matthews said that Mr. Pierce told him that he would come to Austin voluntarily as soon as he settled some urgent business affairs in New York.

Lost $500 Diamond Brooch.

Believing that his wife may have been the victim of a clever sneak thief, F. W. Krenning, whose place of business is at 316 North Sixth street, asked the Detective Bureau Monday to institute search for a $500 diamond brooch which she wore Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Krenning, who live at the Washington Hotel, took a street car ride Sunday afternoon. When they left the hotel the brooch was securely fastened to Mrs. Krenning's collar. When they returned it was missing. It contains one large diamond surrounded by 15 smaller ones.

90 CHICAGO CRIMINALS AT BANQUET WILL TELL WHAT BORE THEM DOWN

Dr. Ben L. Reitman Will Preside—Forbids "Knocks" on Law or Police.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, May 20.—Leaning across a banquet board at which they will be accorded all the respect received by after-dinner speakers, in what are considered the higher walks of life, 90 vagrants and criminals will tell what brought them to their present condition and what is needed to lift them above it.

The banquet is to be given tonigt by the Brotherhood Welfare Association, 10 members of which will be seated at the table with the miscellany of tramps and criminals. It is to be held at a downtown restaurant. There are no stipulations as to attire, and it is not expected that any of the guests will wear evening clothes.

Pittsburg Joe, as toastmaster, will discourse upon the subject, "How I've Lived Without Work."

Dr. Ben L. Reitman, president of the association, who has tramped his way around the world, has told all of the speakers that they must exclude from their statements any "knocks" on the law or the police department.

John Smith, who has served 14 years in jail at various times, and admits he never until recently did a day's work except under compulsion, will tell "Why the Criminal Has a Hard Face."

"Why I Hang Around Barrel Houses," is the topic selected by a speaker who is known only as "Fred, The Bum."

There will be a number of other speeches.

"The purpose of the banquet is to learn just what these men need," said Dr. Reitman. "We have no right to tell of the needs of men whose lives we do not know. We will let them tell their stories. They will tell us the truth and they will tell many new things. Sociologists can learn much from the statements of these fallen men."

HE DIED UNDER DEATH SENTENC[E]

Dr. Frank L. James Ordered [to] Swing by Uncle Sam During Civil War.

WAS NEVER CARRIED OU[T]

After Many Years St. Louis Physician Served Once Hostile Government.

Dr. Frank L. James, a noted scientis[t] once sentenced to be hanged, died [a] natural death at his home, 3032 Oli[ve] street, early Monday.

Once an enemy of the Federal Government, he was afterwards its chi[ef] expert in the investigation of the "embalmed beef" scandal during the Spanish-American War. For his servic[es] at an inquiry in Chicago he received [$] a day from the same mighty pow[er] which once tried to string him "ro[und] the gallows.

The death sentence against him was never revoked. It was one of the thing[s] which was conveniently forgotten aft[er] the Civil War.

As scientific editor of the National Druggist and associate editor of the Medical Brief, St. Louis publications, Dr. James made his name known [to] physicians and chemists all over the world in the 30 years of his residence here.

Invented Submarine Mines.

When the Civil War was begun he was a young student of chemistry [in] Mobile, Ala. He invented submarine mines which were planted in Mobile Bay to blow up Federal gunboats. They were so effective that a price was set upon James' head. He was captured and taken to New Orleans, where a military court, presided over by Gen. B. F. Butler, condemned him to death.

Through the aid of friends he escaped from the New Orleans Jail a week before the date set for his hanging and went to Japan. After seven years of travel in Japan, China and the Philippine Islands he returned to the United States on the advice of friends who assured him that the death sentence against him would not be carried out.

In 1877 he came to St. Louis and had lived here ever since. He never married. At his Olive street home he kept "bachelor's hall" and it was his invariable habit to have a party of his men friends to Sunday dinner.

His death was due to erysipelas. A bug flew into his left eye ten years ago, blinding it. Physicians at the Bethesda Hospital, where he died, believe that this injury may have been the indirect cause of the infection which resulted in his death.

COAXED WIFE TO HELP KILL FAMILY OF 7

Louis Ritchey, Who Commited Suicide, Wanted to Exterminate All.

WIFE TELLS THE STORY

He Pleaded for Her Consent to Join in Wholesale Murder.

Mrs. Agnes Ritchey, not yet 30 years old, and her five bright, pretty children are facing a future of great uncertainty, and the woman is passively accepting her fate.

Left alone in almost destitute circumstances by the suicide of the husband and father, Louis A. Ritchey, who drank carbolic acid in Lafayette Park Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Ritchey has revealed the sad story of her life.

"I was married to Louis Ritchey 10 years ago," she said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "against my parents' wishes. They have never forgiven me, and I cannot look to them for help. My husband was a printer and later editor and manager of the Broadlands Journal. He was prou dand supersensitive. He always thought people were plotting against him. No one ever talked to him but he got offended.

Resigned from Last Position.

"We came to St. Louis eight months ago. He withdrew from the printers' union when he became an editor and after that he was afraid to try to join again for fear he would not be reinstated. He couldn't bear the thought of being rejected. For this reason he only could work in nonunion offices.

"He was a good printer and a fast worker, but since we have been in St. Louis he had not been well.

"He gave up his last position because his employer seemed to begrudge him his wages and told him he was making more out of the work than the office was proud and supersensitive. He almoney when told he wasn't worth it, and he quit.

Urged Suicide of Family.

"After that he answered a lot of advertisements. I do not know where he applied, but he always said they wouldn't pay anything and the work was too hard for him. He did not believe in the Bible, and for months urged me to carry out his plan of suicide and take the children with us. He was never violent. He always said he would never harm me or the children if I didn't agree to the plan. I wouldn't do that. I didn't care about myself so much, but I can't say I ever was so despondent I wanted to die.

"My husband planned every detail of the extermination of our little family.

"He did not believe it would be a crime for us to kill the children. He planned that we should wait until after every one had gone to bed and then we would paste paper over the doors and windows and turn on the gas.

"He said that what would kill the babies might not kill us and to make sure we would drink carbolic acid together. I would not give my consent. I thought he was afflicted mentally and I believed he would take his own life anyway, some time.

"He kissed us good-by Saturday morning as usual. That was the last time I saw him. I haven't seen the body."

A great many persons called to see Mrs. Ritchey Sunday and some left money. She says she is willing to give her little ones for adoption in good homes where they can be educated as she would like to see them. The oldest is Burt, aged 9; Forrest, 7; Nellie, 6; Leon, 4, and the baby, Roberta, 2.

At present the mother and children are comfortably housed at the Missouri Free Home, 369 North Taylor avenue.

William Ritchey of Charleston, Ill., a brother of the dead man, was notified of the facts but it has not been determined what will be done with the body.

FAT GIRL FURNISHED HUMOR AT BLOOMER BASEBALL GAME

Rival Bloomer Teams Gave Exhitions on Diamonds at East St. Louis.

Rival bloomer girl baseball teams showed East St. Louis fans how not to play ball at East St. Louis Sunday afternoon. One aggregation was from St. Louis and the other from Springfield. The Star Bloomer Girls were extensively advertised to play the Fern Glens at Athletic Park, and the other team dropped into town Saturday night and camped at the baseball park at Eighteenth street and Bond avenue.

The Fern Glens defeated their opponents, 6 to 4, after a comical multiplication of errors, and by the same comedy of misplays the Springfield bloomer girls defeated a picked nine at their game, 7 to 5. A large crowd attended the Athletic Park game, but the hurry-up advertising of the rival bloomers did not net an overflow crowd.

At Athletic Park the six girls on the team showed that it is possible for girls to play baseball, but not probable. The three men on their teams did most of the playing. Katie Brown, short of stature, weight 220 pounds, kept the merriment going at full swing. Mabel Kline, who started to pitch, retired in the third inning and occupied the rest of her time in fighting the ball at third base.

One imposing feature of women playing the national game is that they seem unable to control their temper, and when the ball is thrown out of the adius of their hands, they refuse to pick it up and complete the game until they have concluded their wordy war with the player who threw wild. Ollie O'Brien at first base was an excellent example for men players. She scooped 'em up and didn't even frown or make an error.

At batting and base running the girls are bloomers. It's skidoo, one, two, three, you're out, most of the time, but when an error allows them to get on base they can slide. Only one of the girl players was successful in making a run the others being scored by the men. The pitcher, catcher and shortstop were men.

Surprised, But Not Rattled.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"Have you a good dentifrice?" asked the customer.

"Yes, ma'am," answered the druggist's young son, who had been left in temporary charge of the store.

Turning to the shelves back of him, he took down a half-pint bottle of some kind of hair restorative and handed it to her.

"This isn't what I want," said the customer. "This is for the hair. What I am looking for is a preparation for the teeth."

"That's all right, ma'am," the boy assured her. "It's just as good for one as the other, and it's only 50 cents."

The feature of the game was a one-handed catch by Left-fielder Moulton of the Lansdownes, who ran out to the edge of the lake and caught the ball.

MISSOURI RAILWAY TAX FAIR, HE SAYS

Highleyman of Missouri Pacific Thinks State Board Is Most Conservative.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 20.—Col. Sam Highleyman, for 35 years tax commissioner for the Missouri Pacific Railway, startled the Board of Equalization today at the hearing given that road by stating that he did not think the railroads in Missouri were overtaxed. He also stated that he did not think the road was overtaxed in St. Louis and that the officials had no complaint to make on their assessments in that city.

"An unreasonable tax," continued Mr. Highleyman, "is not paid by the railroad, but by the people, and I think for that reason you ought to be just in your estimates. The people ought to be protected, and when you are reasonable in your assessments the people get the benefit of it."

Mr. Highleyman said, however, that taxes were being raised against the railroads all over the country and that next year the Missouri Pacific alone would have to pay over $1,000,000 in taxes.

"Of all the 10 states I visit, I think the Missouri Board of Equalization is the most conservative," said he. "And if all other states were as just, the railroads would have no complaint to make."

The Missouri Pacific is now assessed at $13,946.46 a mile in Missouri and Mr. Highleyman said he considered that a fair assessment and would be willing to stand on it.

"What do you think is the proper basis for making an assessment?" he was asked.

"Thirty-five years ago I would have given you a lot of figures to juggle with, but now I say your own good judgment should be the basis of making the assessments."

Mr. Highleyman was frank in all his statements and concluded by giving the board some figures on increased cost of labor and material in Missouri, which, he said, should be taken into consideration when the board made up its assessments.

GIRL SWALLOWED POISON AFTER SUNDAY VISIT

None of the Family of Hilda Schonder Knows Why She Sought Death.

None of the family of John Schonder of 515 South High street, Belleville, is able to ascribe a reason for the suicide of pretty Miss Hilda Schonder, aged 18 years, who ended her life Sunday evening by drinking carbolic acid.

The girl had been with her mother to visit the family of Martin Oesterle Sunday afternoon. Shortly after 5 o'clock she complained of her ankle hurting her and went into the rear door of the house and came out shortly without a hat. She went into an outbuilding and came out in a few minutes and went back into the house. Shortly afterward they heard a scream. Mrs. Emma Davis and Mrs. Lucy Hehman ran into the house. The father had his daughter in his arms and was trying to get her to talk.

The father stated at the Coroner's inquest that when he returned from a fishing trip there was no one at home. He unlocked the back door and went upstairs to change his clothing. He said that he had just pulled on a pair of shoes when he heard a dull thud, as of a falling body, on the stairway. He went to the head of the stairs and saw his daughter sitting at the foot of the stairs. He called to her, but she failed to answer and he ran down to her. He found her frothing at the mouth. He begged her to tell him what she had done, but she was unable to answer. Physicains were called, but she died before they arrived. Members of the family say that they do not know where the acid was obtained. The bottle could not be found.

The family say she had no love affairs and are inclined to thhink an attack of rheumatism might possibly have caused the act. Dr. E. M. Irwin held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of suicide. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

EFFECT OF FEDERAL PROBE NOTED IN STOCK PRICES

First Quotations Monday Showed an Average Decline of a Point From Saturday---Industrial Issues Losses Are a Trifle Less.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20, 12:30 p. m.—The variety of causes that led to the opening decline caused an average loss of 2 points over the entire rail list and of 1 point over the industrial list by noon.

The market was only fairly active on the decline. The number of shares sold to noon was 393,000, an amount that would have been doubled in the same period a few weeks ago, when liquidation was in full swing. With dullness came some recovery immediately after noon.

NEW YORK, May 20.—9:30 a. m.—There was further depression and decline at the opening Monday, caused by the published report of Standard Oil violations of law and the general belief that other railroad system investigations will follow Union Pacific and Standard Oil prosecutions.

Another factor in the depression and decline Monday was the absence of London markets, which have been bullish on American stocks of late.

The Harriman Pacifics and the Hill stocks were the leaders of the demoralization in the early market and they all opened a point low except St. Paul, which soon lost a point after the opening. A decline of another point followed the opening in half an hour.

FINANCIAL

Call money on the New York Stock Exchange opened Monday at 2½ per cent.

G. W. Galbreath, cashier, and R. S. Howes, assistant cashier of the Third National Bank, will attend the Missouri Bankers' convention at Kansas City. Mr. Galbreath left at noon Monday in order to attend to some business at Sedalia, Mo., en route.

Most of the St. Louis banks and trust companies will have representation at the Missouri Bankers' Convention at Kansas City next Wednesday and Thursday. Pope Sturgeon of the Merchants-Laclede National will represent that institution at the convention.

Local bank clearings and balances: Clearings for Monday, $12,022,896; last week, $12,852,819; balances for today, $1,124,241; last week, $756,723. Decrease, clearings, $829,923; increase, balances, $367,518.

Comparatively quiet as the week opened in the local money market there was a firm inquiry for funds at a number of the institutions, and officials reported no important changes in rates. As a matter of fact, the small reduction of balances here by interior institutions was something of a factor. Collections were reported to be somewhat improved in Missouri and Arkansas.

Wm. G. Lackey, bond officer for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., will attend the Missouri Bankers' convention at Kansas City Wednesday and Thursday of this week. On account of a call to the East President Breckenridge Jones of the Mississippi Valley, who was on the program for a response, is obliged to forego the part he intended taking in the proceedings and Mr. Lackey has been asked to do so.

DYER AND GROTEFEND NOT LISTED ON THE AMERIKA

Names Not on Register But They May Be Aboard Vessel Incognito.

NEW YORK, May 20.—If David P. Dyer Jr., son of Judge Dyer of St. Louis, who was especially commissioned by President Roosevelt as an officer of the United States courts to go to Stockholm and bring back Charles F. Grotefend, alleged embezzling teller of the Washington National Bank of St. Louis, was a passenger, as cabled, on the Amerika from Hamburg, which arrived at her pier Sunday morning, he traveled under an assumed name. Neither the name of Dyer or that of his prisoner appeared on the ship's passenger list.

Mr. Regan of St. Louis, who came East last summer to meet William Jennings Bryan, was on the pier to meet Dyer and Grotefend. Mr. Regan had stayed up all night fearing the steamer would arrive while he was asleep and Grotefend get away. Mr. Regan was unsuccessful in locating Dyer and his prisoner.

The explanation of Dyer's supposed presence on the Amerika is that a cablegram said he sailed from Hamburg on May 9, the Amerika being the only steamer that left there on that day. If Dyer and Grotefend were aboard, the former concealed the identity of each. The only other explanation is that Dyer, who arrived in Stockholm on May 4, did not have time to go through the formalities of receiving his prisoner from the Swedish authorities and in five days proceed to Hamburg to sail on the Amerika.

WHEAT CLOSED SHARPLY HIGHER

Gain of Over Cent Maintained Though Close Was Off From Top.

WEATHER UNFAVORABLE

Coarse Grains Slightly Up in Sympathy—Cash Markets Were Quiet.

Local wheat opened sharply higher and scored a good advance Monday, and though part of the gain was lost, the close was 1⅛c to 1½ higher for the day.

May wheat was quoted 1⅛c higher at 91½c nominal. July wheat opened at a range of 1¼c to 1⅝c higher at 85c to 94⅝c, advanced to 95½c, declined to 93⅝@93¾c, and closed at 93⅞c bid. Sept. wheat opened 1¼c to 1⅜c higher at 95¼c to 95⅜c, advanced to 96⅝c, declined to 95⅛@95¼c, and closed at 95½c bid.

July corn opened ¼c higher at 52¼c, went as high as 52⅝c, declined to 52c, and closed at 52@52⅛c sellers. Sept. corn opened ¼c higher at 52½c, declined to 52¼c, and closed at 52¼@52⅝c bid.

July oats opened ¼c lower at 42c, advanced to 42¾c, and closed at 42⅝c. Sept. was bid for at 37⅝c, ⅝c higher than Saturday's close.

Today was a holiday abroad and no cables were received. The visible supply of wheat in the United States and Canada increased 857,000 bu, and now amounts to 50,993,000 bu, against a decrease of 2,328,000 bu with 33,613,000 bu in sight at the same time last year. World's shipments of wheat were 11,600,000 bu, against 9,830,000 bu last week and 11,658,000 bu a year ago. Wheat and flour on ocean passage now amounts to 51,376,000 bu, against 52,248,000 bu last week and 51,728,000 bu a year ago.

The market was broad and active throughout, prices moving rapidly in a wide range. Trading was on a very large scale.

There were freezing temperatures over Sunday throughout the wheat regions of Canada and our Northwest, and the weather there now is very cold. There were complaints of lack of rain from Kansas and Nebraska and these unfavorable conditions created a very strong demand at the start. There were few offerings on the market, as most of the weak held wheat went overboard Friday and Saturday, and initial prices were 1½c higher, a further advance to over 2c above Saturday's close being scored in a short time.

When the top was reached, however, long wheat began to appear on the market, and prices sagged back to slightly below the opening. She late market was unsettled and irregular and unsettled and the close was 1⅛@1½c higher for the day.

The cash market on wheat was quiet and prices were firm, with a fair demand. Receipts of wheat at all primary markets were 910,062 bu, against 208,812 bu last year, and shipments were 297,172 bu, against 361,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 20,000 bu, against 42,750 bu last year, and shipments were 48,290 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 730,000 bu.

The corn market was fairly active and prices ruled slightly higher. There were no especial features to the market, and, values being supported by the higher prices of wheat, the close was 1-16c higher for the day. The visible supply of corn decreased 1,167,000 bu and now amounts to 6,644,000 bu, against a decrease of 542,000 bu, with 2,258,000 bu in sight at the same time last year. World's shipments of corn were 4,270,000 bu, against 4,258,000 bu last year and 4,818,000 bu a year ago. Corn on ocean passage now totals 11,188,000 bu, against 10,579,000 bu last week, and 14,121,000 bu a year ago.

The cash demand was rather slow today, and prices were slightly lower. Receipts of corn at all primary markets were 540,300 bu, against 601,770 bu last year, and shipments were 508,017 bu, against 352,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 188,100 bu, against 190,000 bu last year, and shipments were 75,835 bu. Corn clearances were 752,000 bu.

Oats were quiet with a good tone, the latter being due entirely to the higher prices on wheat. Trading was light, there being little interest in the market, and prices closed ⅝c higher for the day. Cash prices on oats were easier and the demand poor. The visible supply of oats increased 187,000 bu., and now amounts to 10,398,000 bu., against a decrease of 1,923,000 bu. with 10,578,000 bu. in sight at the same time last year. Primary receipts of oats were 550,160 bu., with shipments of 531,780 bu., and local receipts were 217,000 bu., with shipments of 58,980 bu. Oats clearances were 29,000 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts were 11,280 bbls.; shipments, 5970 bbls. Quote soft winter flour, patents at $4.35@4.75; straight, $4@4.25, and extra fancy at $3.75@4 in wood; medium grades at $3.10@3.40, and low grades at $2.65@2.90 in jute; hard in jute sacks, $4.10@4.35; straight at $3.90@4; clear at $3.15@3.40; low grade at $2.50@2.75; spring patents at $4.65@4.70 in bulk.

ST. LOUIS STOCK MARKET IS QUIET AND IRREGULAR

Third National and Commerce Shares Rule Firm and Unchanged on Limited Transactions---Some Miscellaneous Shares Lower.

Many of the most active trading issues were quoted lower and some of the extremely limited selling was at lower figures at the Monday forenoon session of the St. Louis Stock Exchange.

In the selling list the stocks of two banks and one industrial concern were mentioned. Third National Bank stock, ruling strong, sold in five-share lots at 306 with 305 bid for 100 shares. This bid was not accepted, and it is concluded there is very little stock in the market for sale at any price. This is probably caused by the fact that the stock has developed sudden strength in the past few weeks, and that holders are content to go along for a time in order to ascertain what is at the bottom of the movement and reap any benefit that may come to the stockholders.

Bank of Commerce shares are just holding at 260 on limited sales. Five share lots sold at 259⅝ this morning with 260 asked for 10 or more shares.

In the industrial stocks Ely-Walker common sold 30 shares unchanged from last sales at 120.

There was some inquiry for Hydraulic Press Brick common shares, but bids under 17 were declined and the old figure of 18 asked.

North American was 70 asked with no inquiry, and the Tractions were still low with 69 asked for preferred and no bids; for the common 32½ bid, 33 asked, unchanged. Traction 4 per cent bonds were somewhat firmer at 81½ bid, 81⅞ asked.

Kansas City Telephone stock was steady at 64 bid. The Coal stocks steady at 66½ bid for Central common and 23 for Consolidated.

Candy shares were quiet. There were no sales and only the first and second preferred issues were in the market firm at 78⅝ bid for second and 101¼ bid for first preferred. The session closed firm but dull.

BABY, 7 TIMES KIDNAPED, IS FOUND AGAIN

"Much Kidnaped" Child Has Been Taken From Brooklyn.

THE MARSHAL KEPT IT

For Short Time the Little One Had Rest in Officer's Home.

Evelyn Gallagher, "the much-kidnaped baby," has been taken from Brooklyn, Ill., after spending 18 hours there in care of persons who supposed she had been deserted by her parents.

Mrs. Nellie Gallagher, the mother, is involved in litigation in the St. Louis courts with her husband over the custody of the child, and each is so anxious for it that it has been repeatedly stolen by one or the other. Mrs. Gallagher is 19 and is suing her husband for divorce.

Miss Lillian Kegler of Brooklyn was walking along the main street of the town Friday evening when a stranger asked her to hold his child until he returned. She complied, but got uneasy when, after an hour, the father did not appear.

Anxious Parent Appears.

Town Marshal Dorman was entrusted with the care of the baby, and it spent a peaceful night at his home. When Saturday morning passed with no father to claim the girl, the villagers began to feel sure they had a permanent resident, but at 3 p. m. Gallagher, perspiring and anxious, appeared on the scene.

The only explanation he made was that he and had trouble with his wife, and could not return home sooner. When Evelyn cooed and held out her arms to him it was sufficient proof to the officials of Brooklyn, Ill., that he was the parent.

Mrs. Nellie Gallagher was arranging Friday with Walter A. Kelly, a blind lawyer, for an injunction to prevent her husband from leaving St. Louis with their child when he burst into the office and kidnaped the baby. This was the last of a series of kidnapings, first by one parent and then by the other.

The divorce suit is expected to settle finally the question as to which is entitled to the custody of the girl. Gallagher is 42 years old and looks older. His wife seems younger than her 19 years. He lives at 1549 North Second street.

Thirty Years on the Force.

Night Chief of Police Christy Gillaspy is celebrating his thirtieth anniversary as a member of the Police Department Monday. He believes he is good for ten or fifteen years longer. Thirty years ago, May 20, Gillaspy was appointed a probationary patrolman. He gradually rose in rank until now he occupies the next highest position to Chief. He has served as Night Chief under several administrations. As a policeman Gillaspy saw most of his duty in the Forest Park District where he rode a horse. He is a thirty-third degree Mason.

Invalid Hangs Himself.

An inquest will be held Monday over the body of Joseph Groberg, 34 years old, who was found hanging in the basement of his home, 6026 Minnesota avenue, by a leather strap. Mrs. Mary Groberg found her son after searching all over the house. Bad health and unable to find work was the cause given by Mrs. Groberg for her son's act.

Destitute Family Cared For.

Mrs. Louise E. Ritchey and her five children are temporarily receiving care at the Missouri Free Home, 368 North Taylor avenue. She was left in destitute circumstances at 3136 Morgan street by her husband who drank carbolic acid in Lafayette Park Saturday afternoon.

FIT THE GROCER
Wife Made the Suggestion.

A grocer has excellent opportunity to know the effects of special foods on his customers. A Cleveland grocer has a long list of customers that have been helped in health by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

He says, regarding his own experience: "Two years ago I had been drinking coffee and must say that I was almost wrecked in my nerves.

"Particularly in the morning I was so irritable and upset that I could hardly wait until the coffee was served, and then I had no appetite for breakfast and did not feel like attending to my store duties.

"One day my wife suggested that inasmuch as I was selling so much Postum there must be some merit in it and suggested that we try it. I took home a package and she prepared it according to directions. The result was a very happy one. My nervousness gradually disappeared and today I am all right. I would advise everyone affected in any way with nervousness or stomach troubles, to leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

DAY OF RIOTING IN EVANSVILLE

Strikebreakers' Effort to Operate Street Cars Meets Determined Resistance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 20.—A day of more or less serious rioting marked the determined effort yesterday of the street car company to operate its lines with strike breakers. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the battered cars were returned to the sheds.

The Police Department was inadequate to the occasion, and, while the day and night shifts were on force all day, the men were not able to stop disorders.

Fifty men and boys held up a car at St. Joseph avenue and Franklin street and the windows were broken with stones and decayed eggs. A stone struck the nonunion motorman on the leg and he was removed to a hospital.

The mob surrounded the car and there were no patrolmen near to protect the street car crew. Stones and eggs were hurled at the car in profusion and every window pane was broken. The crew turned on the power and finally escaped.

At Fulton avenue and Maryland street a car was stoned and the conductor and motorman received slight bruises. On another street where a car was attacked the nonunion crew abandoned it. When Supt. John Cash took another crew after the car they were egged, but succeeded in getting the car to the power house. Not an arrest was made during the day, save one, and the man was charged with intoxication.

One of the directors of the company claimed that all the cars that were taken out during the day had been stoned and egged, and that the property loss would probably exceed $1000. He said that proper protection was not afforded; that the police were making no arrests, and that it looked as if they were in sympathy with the strikers. He said that the company would insist that all cars be manned by the police, and the company be given ample protection at once, and if this was not done the company would have to call for State troops.

FEUDISTS BATTLE; 3 KILLED, 1 SHOT

Members of Hall and Fleming Factions Fight in Pike County, Ky.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WHITESBURG, Md., May 20.—As the result of a second battle between the Hall-Fleming feud factions on the Pike County border Saturday, Bob Rivers of the Hall faction, Dave Moore and another member of the Fleming faction are dead and Abe Hall of the Hall side is wounded.

The Fleming feudists came out victors and retreated to the rendezvous on Long's Creek. The Halls had been collecting a strong posse, but were not ready to strike, when a portion of their faction came upon the Fleming boys on the road. There were about twelve men engaged on the two sides and 50 shots were fired before the Halls gave way.

The feud has been going on for years, but until recently the bitterness appeared to have died out. The Flemings are noted as having led the Kuklux years ago, creating a reign of terror. The country is broken, and it will take a strong posse to effect the capture of the Fleming band, who are on the defensive, the Halls having been acting with the officers.

Last week Deputy Sheriff Bony Hall was assassinated, after having led a posse in an attempt to capture the Flemings and meeting with defeat.

POLICEMAN WHO KILLED INVOKES UNWRITTEN LAW

Jackson Officer Found Wife at Their Home With a Chemist.

HAD WARNED, HE SAYS

Victim Descendant of Zachary Taylor---Slayer Freed on Bond.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSON, Miss., May 20.—After a preliminary trial lasting eight hours and brought to a close early Sunday, J. A. Tapley, a member of the Jackson police force, who shot and instantly killed R. W. Taylor, a chemist, at the Tapley home on Farish street Friday morning, was admitted to bail in the sum of $2000, which was prompt'y given by friends, and the prisoner was released from custody.

The trial excited more interest than any event of this sort that has occurred in Jackson in two decades. Tapley pleaded as his principal defense the "unwritten law," alleging that Taylor had invaded the sanctity of his home, and offered evidence tending to show that his suspicions were well founded.

On the other hand, evidence was offered by the prosecution to show that Taylor was a man of upright character, devoted to his own family and his relations with Mrs. Tapley were of friendly character only. It is stated that Taylor was a lineal descendant of President Zachary Taylor and belonged to one of the most prominent families in Alabama. His relatives, among them Capt. Young, ex-Sheriff of Baton Rouge Parish, La., employed Hon. R. N. Miller of Hazelhurst, one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the State, to conduct the prosecution, and the preliminary trial was a battle royal, the defense being represented by State Senator W. J. Croom.

Laughed at His Warning.

The feature of the testimony was Tapley's own statement that he had given Taylor three warnings to keep away from his home. When the third warning was given, Tapley said: "If you don't stay away, I will surely kill you."

According to the defendant, Taylor laughed in his face and walked away. Tapley testified that when he entered his home Friday morning and found Mrs. Tapley and Taylor together, the latter darted into an adjoining room and barred the door; that when he succeeded in kicking the door down, Taylor was advancing on him with a drawn knife. Tapley then drew his pistol and fired. Taylor attempted to regain his feet, and when Tapley was about to shoot again, exclaimed: "Don't shoot me again, Mr. Tapley, let me write a letter to my wife."

A son of Tapley testified to a suspicion that the relations between his mother and Taylor were improper, and told his father of this suspicion. One man testified to having seen Taylor leaving the Tapley home at 3 o'clock in the morning. The State had eight witnesses, all neighbors of the Tapleys, who said they had no knowledge or suspicion of wrong.

Tapley's case will go to the grand jury in September.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Two St. Louis men, who failed to give their names and addresses, were saved from drowning at Ramona Lake, St. Louis County, Sunday, by prompt rescue work on the part of Fred Goss, son of Julius Goss, manager of Ramona Park, and Ed Carr and Sid Bartley.

The two men, who were well-dressed and about 30 years of age each, appeared at the park about 4:30 and rented a boat. When in the middle of the lake about 5 o'clock one of them stood up in the boat and rocked it. He continued rocking the skiff until it upset.

They reached one of the St. Louis men trying to swim ashore and the other clinging to the upturned boat. After wringing out their dampened garments, they took a car for St. Louis.
